1 DEAD, 43 SHAKEN IN SUBWAY CRASH

GIRL BEATEN BY BANDIT IN PAY HOLDUP

Payroll of the Textile Thread Company of Bacon street, Watertown, was stolen today from Miss Marion Ward, 35, a bookkeeper, of Turo avenue, Medford, after a terrific struggle.

The young woman was near the entrance of the plant when she was attacked by a man who knocked her down when she refused to give up the envelope containing the payroll.

After grappling with her on the ground, the robber finally snatched the payroll envelope and dashed away to a waiting automobile which sped away.

Just before the holdup Miss Ward had withdrawn from the Union National Bank in Watertown with the $600 payroll and had placed her car in the garage at the rear of the plant.

The man was apparently waiting for her as she made her way into the building.

Although she was beaten in the attack, Miss Ward obtained the number of the bandit auto. Police later said the plates had been reported stolen.

The car in which the two made their escape was parked about 25 yards away from the scene of the holdup.

BANDIT TELLS HOW HE SLEW TROOPER

Monroe, Mich., Jan. 21 (INS) — Surprising authorities after his capture in Michigan's greatest manhunt, Alcide (Frenchy) Benoit, 24, confessed killer of State Trooper Richard Hammond, defiantly entered a plea of not guilty today.

The paroled convict and marihuana addict entered the plea in a surly whisper as a crowd jammed Judge John P. Faucher's closely guarded courtroom.

In effect, he demanded a trial in the face of amazing confessions made to state troopers who captured him last night after a 24-hour manhunt started when the body of Trooper Hammond was found shackled to a rural mail post.

Judge Faucher bound him over to Circuit court without bail for appearance during the February term. Prosecutor Francis Brady, who had planned to have the kidnap slayer in Marquette prison by eightfold, said Benoit could be sentenced immediately if he changed his plea to guilty.

In Monroe County Jail, Benoit told this story of his crime.

Monroe, Mich., Jan. 21—Sure, I shot that state trooper. He put up an argument. Guys can't argue with me.

Listen, that's my racket, kidnaping. I kidnap 'em, take 'em for a ride and then get their dough.

I've been making a living that way since I got out of Ionia.

How many have I done? I can't even remember.

Dies Under Subway Train's Wheels

Victim of a subway accident in which he was instantly killed, the body of Angus MacDonald, 36, of 10 Virginia street, Dorchester, is shown lying, feet and legs protruding, under the car which crushed him. Firemen jacked up the rear part of the last car, the front two wheels of which had split a switch, derailed the car and caused it to crash against the subway wall. Firemen worked for more than an hour to extricate him, and traffic was delayed two hours.

CAR SPLITS SWITCH, SMASHES INTO WALL

One Boston Elevated employe was killed, another seriously hurt and 43 passengers were shaken up, cut or bruised today when a two-car Beacon street trolley train split a switch in underground Arlington station.

The dead man is Angus MacDonald, 36, of Virginia street, Dorchester. He was at work on a portable lower when one of the cars leaped its tracks and pinned him against the subway wall.

Daniel H. McEachern, 41, of Warren street, Roxbury, suffered a fracture of the collar bone. He was hurled from the tower where he was working at MacDonald's side.

The accident occurred as the two-car train was rounding the curve by the Public Garden exit of the subway. The trucks of the second car failed to take the switch after the first had passed over it.

Guard Percy, 30, of Keene alley, Brookline, told reporters what happened as he said it:

"The car seemed to buckle up suddenly," he said. "Glasses flew out of all the windows. Practically everyone was pitched out onto the floor in any car.

NEAR PANIC

"There was a near panic for a few minutes. When I was able to get off the floor, I feared my face was cut and blood was running down one hand. I got out as quickly as I could."

Alfred Wall, 45, of Sumner street, Dorchester, another passenger, who was treated at Haymarket Relief Hospital, said the whole things happened so quickly he hardly knew how to describe it.

"We were just riding along when everything seemed to fly loose," he said. "I was knocked flat on my face.

"My glasses were smashed over my nose and shattered window glass showered me. There someone helped me out.

WOMEN SCREAM

"Women were screaming and men were trying to help them, but there was almost a panic."

Wall was found to have cuts on the left side of his face and for cuts on fingers and left hand.

Typical of the women's reasons were those of Mrs. Ralph Sargent, 30, of Winchester street, Medford, and Miss Mary Saunders, 23, of Windsor street, Everett.

Mrs. Sargent and Miss Saunders were both treated for shock.

"I was tossed out of my seat and onto the floor when the crash came," the former said. "Then I guess I must have fainted. Everything went black until I recovered and I was out of the car."

The other woman, a Works Progress Administration employe, was taken to the office of Dr. Joseph A. Cogan in Boylston street. She was too upset by her experience to talk to reporters.

The Boston Elevated offices said that 20 persons in one car and 23 in another had reported their names. Most of them went to their homes for treatment.

McEachern, the El employe, was taken to Brooks Hospital in Brookline. He said that he and MacDonald were repairing wires over a "dead" track. It was the switch to this track that the train split.

ALL CHRYSLER PLANTS SHUT

Detroit, Jan. 21—Chrysler Motors will suspend all operations at midnight tonight, Detroit motor circles were informed today. Shortage of glass is given as the reason.

The Chrysler company does not expect to resume operations until Monday. The company, in notices placed on bulletin boards of its plants, stated it had used its glass reserve and was not receiving enough to care for present needs. The Chrysler notices said not enough glass was being received to supply current requirements for five days' production this week.

These notices were posted before final settlement of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company strike became known. By Monday the com-

More Rain, Freeze Due; Ice, Slush Peril Driving

Sleet and rainwater in the city and slush and ice on country roads made both walking and riding difficult today.

The heat in the harbor caused a general slowup in shipping.

Nor did the weather bureau have any cheering news, for more rain is due, with a possibility of a slipping cold tomorrow.

Forty-five public works department trucks, with crews totaling 180 men, were sanding Boston streets as soon as daylight came and 200 other employes were clearing catch basins in the sewers.

The snow that fell during the night looked like a lot, but actually amounted to only one inch.

Police all over the state reported a big jump in the number of automobile accidents, caused by the slippery roads and the foggy atmosphere.

Henry Bailey, 65-year-old Foxboro man, was killed by an automobile. Police said that the car was operated by Franklin D. Crocker, son of a Foxboro doctor.

PAIN SPASMS CUT POPE'S HEART BEAT

By FRANK GERVASI

(Copyright, 1937, by International News Service)

Vatican City, Jan. 21—A sudden heart attack struck Pope Pius today, cutting down his heart beat to a dangerously low point, and making his general condition precarious.

Pains which had been coming in spasms throughout the lower part of his body for 48 hours suddenly struck the region of the heart, it was learned on unimpeachable authority.

The aged pontiff was in agony from the attack.

The angina pains were reported authoritatively to be "intense and recurrent." Dr. Aminta Milani, the Pope's physician, administered an Danan patent drug used in cases of angina pectoris.

The Pope was delirious with pain. No visitors were permitted to enter the sick room with the sole exception of Cardinal Pacelli, Papal secretary of state.

Just before the pains reached his heart, the Pope had described them as being so intense that "there are not words in any vocabulary to describe them."

City Sues Curley, Santosuosso In Secret Action

Mystery surrounded the filing of a bill by the city today in Suffolk Superior Court directed against former Governor James M. Curley and Dr. Joseph Santosuosso, recently defeated as secretary of state.

The bill was filed by Henry E. Foley, corporation counsel, who handed it to Judge Harold P. Williams in the judge's lobby. Judge Williams immediately impounded the papers. The action is returnable February 1.

It was later learned by reporters at City Hall that Attorney Edward F. McClennen of Devonshire street had been retained as special counsel by the city.

PHONE DELAYS BALK SUICIDE IN ROXBURY

By JAMES F. DOOLING

"I want to find out how long it will take gas to kill me!"

This startling statement from a girl on the other end of a telephone line to Boston City Hospital at four o'clock this morning signaled the beginning of a fast-moving drama.

It saw Philip Faye, night supervisor at the hospital, and a Dorchester telephone operator play heroic roles and it climaxed with Mrs. Harriet Martyn Mahoney, 20-year-old bride of last Labor Day week-end, being cheated of the death she sought.

GIRL WILL LIVE

Faye's wit and coolness and the fast work of Miss Gertrude A. Carroll, the Kenmore branch operator in tracing the caller's phone, resulted in police rising to Boylston street apartment to batter down the doors there and carry out the already-unconscious girl.

At City hospital, doctors decided she would live.

When he first picked up the phone to hear the words: "I want to find out how long it will take gas to kill me," Faye could hardly believe his ears.

"Say that again," he asked.

The voice repeated the message and added:

"I have just decided I have lived long enough and I am desperate. I want to die."

Faye tried to find out who his caller was. The woman refused to say. Then he tried another tack—delay.

"Do you mean coal gas or

THOUSAND FLEE FOR LIVES AS FLOODS PERIL CITIES

LOSS OF MILLIONS IN TEN STATES; WATER RISING

By the Associated Press

Heavy rains heightened sharply today the river menace to widespread east and central west areas, driving some streams to crests which threatened to equal record floods of 1913.

Property loss and human misery mounted with the rising waters. In Cincinnati alone police estimated damage in excess of $1,000,000.

Thousands abandoned Ohio valley homes and sought refuge on higher lands. Hundreds banded together to maintain dikes and levees, while others formed emergency crews to transfer merchandise from perilous areas.

The floods covered miles of land in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Maryland, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois, Tennessee, Missouri and Arkansas. Yellow waters swept six city streets, flooded basements in scores of communities.

WARNS 40,000 TO FLEE

Riding high on an accumulation of heavy rains, the Ohio river descended on Portsmouth, O., and caused City Manager Frank Sheehan to warn all residents, except those in hilltop districts, to prepare to leave homes and business houses. The city has a population of more than 40,000.

The river rose two-tenths of a foot an hour at Cincinnati toward a crest the weather bureau said might equal that of the 1913 inundation, which cost Southwestern Ohio millions of dollars.

The village of New Richmond, 30 miles east of Cincinnati, sent a call for aid and boats and crews were dispatched to evacuate families surrounded by water. Fifteen hundred families already had left their homes in northern Kentucky cities.

5 FEET DEEP IN STREETS

Indicative of the sweep of the floods was a report that 1500 of the 2000 houses in New Richmond were flooded. Water swirled five feet deep in the streets.

Almost the entire population of Aurora, Ind., worked to remove stocks from stores. Five sirens called them from their beds at midnight.

Bursting through a levee, White river waters took over the village of Hazleton, Ind. Its 500 residents stood on hills and surveyed the wreckage.

Flood waters swept over the Kentucky lowlands, in some places reaching the 1913 mark, driving hundreds from their homes and derailing a Louisville & Nashville train at Slaughters. The National Guard was mustered in Frankfort to assist evacuation of areas flooded by the Kentucky River.

TOWN UNDER WATER

Rising levels of the Mississippi river and its tributaries forced lowland residents to flee in West Tennessee and Northeastern Arkansas. Tents, box cars and public buildings housed the homeless.

Winter rain and mountain snow sent the rivers in Western Pennsylvania toward flood stage today. The south branch of the Potomac washed out a temporary bridge near Springfield, W. Va.

Hazleton, Ind., bore the brunt of the flood's latest onslaught. The village was inundated to a depth of 12 feet when the White River broke through a levee. More than 200 families fled to higher ground.

Thirty blocks in Dayton, Ky., a city of 10,000 population, were submerged.

HUNDREDS OF REFUGEES

The Andrews Steel Company closed its Newport, Ky., mills employing 1500 men because of flood conditions. Approximately 500 other workers in Newport and vicinity were previously made idle by high water.

The Red Cross reported 2000 refugees in the flood area of Kennett, Mo. Resources searched for many families believed marooned by the St. Francis river flood waters.

Seventy-five families were rescued by motorboat crews yesterday.

High waters made 200 persons homeless at Dexter, Mo., and 200 at Corning, Ark.

The Cumberland river, far above flood stage, threatened waterfront buildings at Nashville, Tenn., and routed many householders.

LANGONE AUTO CASE DELAYED

Worcester, Jan. 21 (AP) — Charges of driving an automobile without a license against State Senator Joseph A. Langone of Boston were continued until January 28, in district court today by Judge Riley.

Goodwin Assails "Fixing" Attempt

Frank A. Goodwin, registrar of motor vehicles, today hit out at the attempt of Senator Joseph A. Langone Jr. of Boston, to "fix" his automobile violation case.

In commenting on the serving of a court summons to the senator on the charge of driving without a license, Goodwin said:

"I don't think the public is as much surprised at the fact that the senator was violating the law as they are to learn that a lawmaker was not able to "fix" the violation.

"I will be more surprised than the public if Joe doesn't file a bill to abolish the Department of Public Safety."

Wife in Roxbury Meets Death In Mystery Plunge

Mrs. Frederick Farrell, 54, of Rollins court, Roxbury, died today after a mysterious plunge from the third-story window of her home.

Police from the Dudley street station found her dazed husband in the kitchen of their home, and sought with little success to learn from him the activities of his wife before the plunge.

The window from which Mrs. Farrell hurtled to the ground was broken, investigators said.

The plunge victim was first seen by a neighbor, Mrs. Margaret Royal, who called police.

She was still alive, writhing in agony on the stony ground, when police arrived. She was rushed to City Hospital, but died 30 minutes after admittance.

Police said she was unable to make a statement.

Her body was removed to the Southern mortuary for examination by the medical examiner.

Farrell is employed as a laborer on a Works Progress Administration project in Hyde Park.

Amazing Confession

Ex-Convict Bares Trooper Killing

a guy get tough with me when I took him for a ride, and I took his money and hurried up his car. They can't get tough with me.

Say, I've done holdups in almost every city in this country—Detroit, Chicago, lots in Toledo, and Detroit was easy. Grand Rapids too. Pontiac, Cleveland—Lord I can't remember.

Listen, I watched you guys hunting for me.

TOOK $80

You mean this one with the trooper? Well, Smittie (John A. Smith) and I picked up that fellow in Detroit at that used car lot.

We started out Warren avenue, and I asked to drive. Well, I guess you know about that. We drove this guy to Toledo and put him out after we'd taken 80 bucks from him.

We first tied him up with a belt. That was about 8 o'clock, and we left Detroit about six.

We drove around Toledo looking for a while, too. Then we started back. When we pulled in for gasoline at Monroe those two troopers in the scout car came over and questioned us.

One of them put Smittie in his car. Hammond put me in with him. He frisked me, but I had my gun dropped through a hole in my coat. It's a .44. I bought it in Chicago.

We followed along in the trooper's car behind Smittie and the other officer.

I pulled my gun just as soon as we got started and I told that trooper to keep over his gat. He did, but he began to speed up. Then I socked him and told him to do as I said.

ARGUED WITH TROOPER

He slowed up then and when the other car made a turn I pushed my gun in his ribs and told him to step on it.

We drove like the devil and the trooper tried to wreck the car. I didn't know the roads very well but I made him turn around.

The other trooper shot once, but we had a head start. I had the radio turned on so I knew right away they were following me.

The trooper and I argued and he kept trying to pull the car into the ditch.

Then I could see the other car coming toward us, and I tried to make the trooper turn around. That's where we almost got stuck.

I fired several times, I didn't know how many, and we got going. We turned off on the first road I could see.

We didn't go very far before I stopped the car. I'd got the handcuffs on one of the trooper's wrists, and I pulled him out of the car.

He put up an awful battle. He almost got away from me. I didn't trust him up to the post and shoot him.

I shot him when we were rolling over in the ditch. He was getting the best of me. He was a big fellow.

When I shot I looked up, and somehow his handcuffs had got around the post. I could hear the police radio, and I got back in and drove like the devil.

I didn't know which way to go so I just cruised around. After a while I saw another scout car. I could tell it from the spotlight.

I tried to turn around but the road was slippery and I got stuck, backed into a ditch. I turned off my lights first thing and I jumped and run. I had run a couple of hundred yards, and I fell down in a hollow and lay there.

The cops came and put their flashlights about, but I didn't move. More cops came. They milled about.

Once when they were looking on the other side of the road I moved back, on my hands and knees, another hundred feet.

HID IN BARN

I lay there a long time. Finally the cars stopped coming. I began to walk. I pushed north, and crossed three more roads, and I moved, wet, too. I don't know where. I don't know this country.

It began to rain. I hid in a barn, and lay there for a long time after it got daylight. Then I moved across the backfields again and I hid in some corn stalks. I was tired, and I hadn't eaten.

I could hear the cars whipping up and down the roads. I knew I had to get out.

When the fog began to rise I moved again, fast. I must have got a couple of miles. It was dark.

I tried one cop and told them I wanted a car, and they told me they didn't have a car, so I went on to the next place.

TOOK $16 OFF TROOPER

That was the home of Paul Balogg on Hailes road, two and a half miles from the state police headquarters established at Lulu.

I told the old guy I wanted him to help me with my car, stuck in the mud. He came out of the house and I showed him my gun. He was scared.

I told him I wanted his coupe. I'd take it alone. Then we couldn't get the thing started, so I told him he would take the truck.

We started out over back roads. I had dough—oh yes, I took $16 off the trooper, but I left his watch. I had his gun still.

The driving was tough. You know the rest. When I saw that truck across the road, I knew the game was up.

Glass Shortage Halts All Chrysler Plants

pany expects to have sufficient glass on hand to warrant four days' production.

After that period executives expect the Pittsburgh company will be able to supply normal needs for regular production schedules.

Several weeks ago William S. Knudsen, General Motors vice president, said his organization had on hand only enough glass for three weeks of production. The shortage has been expected here for some time.

With quiet reigning on all fronts in Michigan, the automobile strike meanwhile entered what is generally conceded to be its crucial phase.

MINOR STRIKES END

Minor strikes ended in the last 24 hours. The sit-down at the Bohn Aluminum and Brass plant, in progress for 23 days, terminated yesterday. Richard T. Frankensteen, union organizer, told the workers of the settlement and they quit the plant immediately. Better pay rates were obtained, Frankensteen said.

Strike leaders in the motor battle between General Motors and its employes saw the ending of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass strike and the probable ending of revolt in the Libbey-Owens-Ford Company glass makers, as being of great help to the union.

Miss Perkins Removes One Barrier to Peace

Washington, Jan. 21 (AP)—Secretary Perkins said today occupation of Fisher Body plants in Flint, Mich., by sit-down strikers was the "principal barrier" to resumption of negotiations between the General Motors corporation and the United Automobile workers.

Before resuming her efforts to bring corporation officials and the union together, Miss Perkins told reporters one of the main reasons for the failure of Governor Murphy's proposed negotiations in Detroit to materialize had been swept aside. That reason, she said, was the "Flint Alliance episode."

William S. Knudsen, General Motors vice president, notified the Flint Alliance—composed of non-union employes—Saturday night he would confer with it Tuesday.

The United Automobile Workers immediately accused General Motors of "bad faith" and the negotiations scheduled for Monday did not take place.

The union then refused to evacuate the Flint plants.

Since Monday, Miss Perkins said, the corporation has agreed not to negotiate with any group other than the auto union. That leaves, she said, occupation of the Flint plants the "principal barrier" to resumption of strike settlement negotiations.

Tire Plants to Close During Sit-Down Strike

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 21 (AP)—Several hundred workers began the second day of their "sit-down" strike in the Kelly-Springfield tire company plant today, with no disorder reported and no pickets in the vicinity of the plant.

Firestone Tire's Steel Strikers Shut Plants

Akron, O., Jan. 21 (AP)—A sit-down strike in plants of the Firestone Steel Products Co., subsidiary of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., continued today.

EX-WIVES Primrose Path TABOOED

BENCH, CLERGY HIT DECISION

Greater Boston clergymen and members of the judiciary were emphatic today in disapproval of the ruling of Herman S. Dike, referee, in Brooklyn, N. Y., Supreme Court, that an innocent wife involved in a divorce action had the right to follow the "primrose path of moral relaxation."

Referee Dike maintained that a woman innocent in such an action had the right to keep company with men, without open scandal, during and after the time her husband was continued financial responsibility.

Opposite Views

Says Judge Edward A. Counihan, 2d, of Cambridge district court:

"The decision of Referee Dike that a woman has a right to follow the primrose path, while her husband does the opposite, wouldn't have any great bearing in the Massachusetts courts in my opinion.

"Of course, it is a matter for a probate court judge to comment on, but in our courts we would demand that both husband and wife practice clean, moral behavior.

"No more leniency should be granted the woman in the case than the man. Both should be on an equal footing.

"I don't believe the ruling will have any influence in the Supreme Court if an appeal is taken.

"The woman has no right to exercise immoral freedom."

Cites Higher Law

Reverend William M. MacNeir, former President Cambridge Ministerial Association, comments:

"The gospel teaches a higher standard than does the law.

"No legal decision by any judge has the right to control the moral attitude of any person. There is no reason why Referee Dike should take the moral law into his own hands.

"Why should a woman have any more right than a man in such a case?

"As a matter of fact, neither one has a right to take advantages as far as morality is concerned."

Baby Girl's Heart Exposed Outside Of Her Body

St. Louis, Jan. 21 (AP)—A tiny infant born with its heart exposed on the outside of the body is a patient at St. Louis Children's Hospital. Supervising Physician Dr. Clarence Saxe Cole, Physicians did not believe the baby would live.

The heart, uncovered by tissue lies on the baby's chest. Although it has been connected to the large blood vessels, the baby's color is pinkish. Possibilities of an operation to place the heart inside the body are considered physicians.

The baby was delivered by a midwife Tuesday night and was taken to the hospital two hours later. It is reported comfortable at an incubator.

Pediatric consultants are busy with hearts near the outer edge of the chest cavity and surgical skill is a thing of wonder. But an entirely exposed organ was said by the physicians to be a problem.

NOW 15, BOY IS HEIR TO BARONY

London, Jan. 21 (HS)—Lord and Lady Ampthill, parents of the "Dream Baby" made famous in English courts for over a decade, are no longer man and wife.

Lady Ampthill's divorce nisi was decreed absolute yesterday, thus ending one of the most celebrated marital controversies ever tried in this country.

It was in 1922 that Lord Ampthill, then the Hon. John Hugh Russell, first sued for divorce. He alleged that he was not the father of Mrs. Cristabel Russell's infant son.

Along Came Baby

He said that when they married it was with the understanding that their relations would be purely platonic. Never, he said, had there been marital relations. But along came the baby.

His counsel told the court that Mrs. Russell had been informed by a fortune teller that she was going to become a mother.

"It must be a miracle," she was quoted as saying.

Russell won a decree in 1923. Then Mrs. Russell began her sensational fight to establish the legitimacy of her son, Geoffrey, who was to become known as the "dream baby."

She explained that the child was conceived while his father was asleep.

The mother's fight went all the way to the august House of Lords, where her appeal was sustained by a vote of two to three by the Lords' tribunal.

Automatic Heir

Russell became Lord Ampthill in 193[illegible] when his father, the distinguished former Viceroy of India, died in London.

Young Geoffrey Russell, who is now a 15-year-old schoolboy, automatically became heir to the Baronage of Ampthill.

The Ampthill estate was badly depleted by the "dream baby" litigation, costs of which exceeded $200,000.

But the next day 12-year-old Charles dropped a stick of wood on the weapon. It fired and the ball struck him in the right eye.

CHURCH DENIES DIVORCEE BAN

London, Jan. 21 (AP)—The Upper House of the Convocation of Canterbury rejected today a resolution which would have denied communion to persons who are divorced, then remarry and "continue to live in disregard of moral obligations."

The resolution, moved by the Bishop of Ely, was supported only by the Bishop of St. Albans. Friends of a proposal for liberalizing the Church of England's attitude toward divorced persons considered the vote a victory.

Later the Lower House of the convocation adopted a resolution urging stronger safeguards against collusion in divorce cases, which it stated was not now "uncommon."

Aim at Edward

The convocation, in Westminster Abbey, was discussing the Church of England's attitude in the divorce issue involved in the abdication of King Edward VIII.

The resolution offered by the Bishop of Ely, the Rt. Rev. Bernard Oliver Francis Heywood, said:

"This house is not able to approve the admission to holy communion of persons who, having remarried after divorce and having thereby transgressed the law of Christ and the church, continue to live in disregard of moral obligations which must bind those who are to be admitted to holy communion."

The bishop said the church held that a divorced person who remarried sinned against the seventh commandment.

Simultaneously the convocation of York, at York, discussed the coronation of King George VI, which the Archbishop of York described as a dedication of king and consort to the service of the King of Kings.

HOWARD HUGHES

Chicago, Jan. 21 (INS)—Howard Hughes and Katharine Hepburn will be married here today, according to reliable reports.

County Clerk Michael Flynn, aroused at his home early today, said he had been informed the actress and the young millionaire airspeed king, will appear at the marriage license bureau today to obtain their license.

Miss Hepburn, playing here in the stage play, "Jane Eyre," dodged reporters waiting at the stage door at the close of last night's performance. At her hotel, she was "out" to interviewers.

Hughes, who Tuesday set a new transcontinental air speed record, was reported to have arrived in Chicago from New York yesterday.

At Miss Hepburn's hotel, officials denied Hughes was registered, but a telephone operator answering a telephone request to be connected with Hughes, said:

"I can't connect you with Mr. Hughes' room without announcing the name of the caller first."

A maid at the hotel said Hughes was registered there yesterday.

Friends of the couple, whose romance has long been rumored, corroborated the marriage rumor, saying they would be wed today.

Miss Hepburn closeted herself in her hotel room all day yesterday, denying herself to all callers.

EX-WIVES Primrose Path TABOOED

BENCH, CLERGY HIT DECISION

Greater Boston clergymen and members of the judiciary were emphatic today in disapproval of the ruling of Norman S. Dike, referee, in Brooklyn, N. Y., Supreme Court, that an innocent wife involved in a divorce action had the right to follow the "primrose path of moral relaxation."

Referee Dike maintained that a woman involved in such an action had the right to keep company with men, without such action leaving any effect on her alimony, while her ex-husband was confined to the "steep and thorny path of continued financial responsibility."

Opposite Views

Said Judge Edward A. Counihan Jr., of Cambridge district court:

"The decision of Referee Dike that a woman has a right to follow the primrose path after her husband does the opposite, wouldn't have any great bearing in the Massachusetts courts, in my opinion.

"Of course, it is a matter for a probate court judge to comment on, but in our courts we would demand that both husband and wife practice clean, moral behavior.

"No more leniency should be granted the woman in the case than the man. Both should be on an equal footing.

"I don't believe the ruling will have any influence in the Supreme Court if an appeal is taken.

"The woman has no right to exercise immoral freedom."

Cites Higher Law

Reverend William M. MacNair, former President Cambridge Ministers' Association, commented:

"The gospel teaches a higher standard than does the law.

"No legal decision by any judge has the right to control the moral attitude of any person. There is no reason why Referee Dike should take the moral law into his own hands.

"Why should a woman have any more right than a man in such a case?

"As a matter of fact, neither one has a right to take advantages as far as morality is concerned."

Baby Girl's Heart Exposed Outside Of Her Body

St. Louis, Jan. 21 (AP)—An infant girl, born with her heart on the outside of the body, is a patient at St. Louis Children's Hospital, Superintendent Ethelyn D. Claiborne said today. Physicians did not believe the baby would live.

The heart, uncovered by tissue, lies on the centre of the chest with its base connected to the larger blood vessels. The baby's heart is plainly visible. Possibilities of an operation to place the heart inside the chest were considered remote.

The baby was delivered by a midwife Tuesday night and was taken to the hospital two hours later. It is resting comfortably in an incubator.

Infants occasionally are born with hearts near the outer edge of the chest cavity and usually live for a little more of these. But an entirely exposed organ was said by the physicians to be a procedure.

AS I SEE IT

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International copyright and all other rights reserved.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 21.—What we need around here more than anything else right now is a high class union mind reader.

DAMON RUNYON

A lot of folks are purporting to read Mr. Roosevelt's mind, and forecasting his course of action over the next stretch of years, but these efforts strike us as strictly amateur.

What we need is one of those experienced professional mind readers, who can step up and take one look at Mr. Roosevelt, and then tell us all—without any guesswork about it.

We don't want any small parlor tricks, such as disclosing that the card Mr. Roosevelt is thinking of is the nine of hearts, though we might be casually interested in learning who he is thinking of handing it to.

Of course, a professional mind reader might have some difficulty in getting within mind-reading range of Mr. Roosevelt at this time. He would have to get past Mr. Marvin McIntyre, the affable secretary, for one.

Mr. McIntyre might conceive the idea that the mind reader was going to read the McIntyre mind, too, just in passing, and that wouldn't do, at all. Mr. McIntyre would have the mind reader tossed out on his skull, before the man could get close enough to Mr. Roosevelt to establish a circuit.

* * *

The amateur mind readers around here apparently have no such difficulty, judging from their reports of what is on Mr. Roosevelt's mind.

We don't know how these chaps manage to sneak past the vigilant Mr. McIntyre, but lately they may have been disguising themselves as governors. There have been so many governors around the White House recently that Mr. McIntyre couldn't possibly stop and search every one, to find out if they were mind readers.

Anyway, we learn from the amateur reports that aside from chasing all his cabinet members, excepting Wallace, Hull and Morgenthau, up the street during the next year or so, Mr. Roosevelt isn't thinking of anything much but the consolidation of the New Deal gains.

* * *

You can see at once the inadequacy of the amateurs. A professional mind reader on the order of Mercedes, or any of those other old timers, would let us know Mr. Roosevelt's thoughts in detail on this proposition, and what he is thinking of doing in the event the New Deal fails to consolidate, allowing that a thought so dire might occur to him at all.

We wish we could remember the name and current address of a great professional mind reader of our acquaintance back down the years, that we might send for him in this crisis.

* * *

Couldn't Tell What Dice Thought

He used to play vaudeville, and astound audiences all over these United States by his mental feats. He could tell anybody what they were thinking of any time. We used to shoot dice with him, and he often called our thoughts to a turn, though for some strange reason he never could tell what the dice were thinking of, and wound up broke.

He would be a good man for us around here just now.

* * *

By consolidating, is meant the riveting of the present set-up of the New Deal, with all its numerous works, in such a manner that it cannot easily be dislodged now, or in the future. In short, to make it as permanent as any of the works of men are permanent.

It is agreed by all the master minds in these parts that the consolidation depends largely upon the state of the nation in the next few years. If the state of the nation is good, all right. If the state of the nation is bad, that's a horse of another color.

Assuming that everything from here on goes along nicely, and folks are eating regularly, Mr. Roosevelt's task of consolidation will be easy enough. But if the state of the nation takes a turn for the worse—if it befalls that the national stomach again gets to thinking its throat is cut, the rivets of the structure may not hold. The consolidation may be a total bust, as we say at the club.

* * *

Ahead of the Gun at All Times

Then, of course, Mr. Roosevelt must think up something else.

The amateur mind readers say he isn't thinking of the something else right now, because it isn't necessary, and here again the professional mind reader would be a big help. The professional mind reader would penetrate Mr. Roosevelt's thought to a greater depth than any amateur can possibly attain, and give us the deep-down stuff.

Those who know Mr. Roosevelt are pretty sure that he is already thinking of the something else that may be required if the consolidation doesn't hold, as Mr. Roosevelt is, by nature, a fellow who thinks a little ahead of the gun at all times.

But the master minds agree that to think of anything beyond what he has already decided to do, will require Mr. Roosevelt to break his own best record—to out-think himself. They do not believe that he can possibly think up anything more revolutionary than what he thought of in establishing the New Deal in the first instance, even though he summon twice the heft of the heavy thinkers that he had in here helping him with his thinking.

* * *

It doesn't require any professional mind reader to tell us what some other lads around here are thinking of already, now that Mr. Roosevelt has decided to do away with a lot of minor principalities of the New Deal, and tie them all in together into one bundle.

The wiping out of these minor principalities means that a lot of lads will lose some of their position and power. When you start taking position and power from men, they start thinking. And they generally think out loud, which does away with any necessity for a mind reader.

What some of the gentlemen who see themselves about to be divested of position and power are thinking of is audible enough, but scarcely fit for publication in a family journal.

They don't care if the New Deal is ever riveted—if they are going to lose their jobs. As a matter of fact, some of them are working themselves up into a state of mind to assist in keeping the rivets jarred loose.

G. O. P. TRADE WILL OUST 3 CURLEY MEN

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Ousting of three Curley-Republican office holders is reported to be the basis of an agreement between G. O. P. leaders and the administration of Charles F. Hurley, the Democratic chief executive.

The three whom the Republican big-wigs are gunning for, the report has it, are James G. Moran, former president of the Senate and now a member of the racing commission; Ernest J. Dean, commissioner of conservation, and William E. Weks, member of the state alcoholic beverages commission.

The way for these removals, as well as any that the governor may have in mind, is paved through the filing of the resolve by Senator Joseph R. Cotton of Lexington, upper branch Republican floor leader, for a reorganization of all the 29 state departments and the numerous boards and commissions.

As the wedding of the Republican machine preparatory for the 1938 campaign, disciplins apparently is to be dominant feature.

It is important, therefore, that examples be made, and members of the party who have received rewards for supporting policies of former Governor Curley are the natural targets.

At the recent luncheon to the Republican members of the Legislature and the Executive Council given by the Republican State Committee at the Boston City Club, Senator Sinclair Weeks, before his departure for Australia, made it plain that fence jumpers in the future will feel the full weight of the state committee's wrath.

Before filing his resolve, Senator Cotton, one of the bitter-enders in the election in the Senate which saw Moran elevated in the presidency with solid Democratic support, submitted his proposal to Governor Hurley's office.

The row between Governor Councillor Daniel H. Coakley and Governor Hurley has taken a new slant with an announcement by the councillor that he insisted that his son, Timothy, be fired from the repair division of the public works department when it became known that six of his fellow workers were to be let out.

According to the councillor, son Timothy's name was inadvertently put on the fired list. An effort was made to reinstate him but the councillor refused pointblank to allow it.

"What they would have said about me if my son, Timmy, had retained his position and his six associates got the gate," the councillor commented.

In answer to a query as to whether he thought there would be any "Assistant Governors" in the present administration, an obvious reference to John Lacey Delaney, one of the Governor's bodyguard advisers, Coakley said:

"Oh, I don't think there will be any assistant governors. Charlie knows what is going on, or so he says. He knows how to run each department better than anyone else—personally."

Harold J. Timilty, relative of the Boston police commissioner, and Raymond S. Sullivan, son of Mayor John S. Sullivan of Worcester, both employes of the State Department of Agriculture, are two more who face the Hurley axe, it is reliably reported.

Commissioner of Agriculture Howard H. Murphy, said he would have something to say today on these reports.

Timilty is a resident of Roslindale. He was hired as a temporary dairy bonding investigator on December 1, 1936. On June 15, 1936, he continued on the position for a six months' probationary period at $1800 a year.

Bishop Gallagher Dead

Fr. Coughlin Sad At Loss of Backer

Detroit, Jan. 21 (INS)—The Board of Consultors of the Roman Catholic diocese of Detroit was to convene today to name an administrator for the diocese after the death of Bishop Michael J. Gallagher.

The prelate, known as the "Building Bishop" and the "Fighting Bishop" throughout the 29 Southern Michigan counties which comprised his See, died last night ten minutes after he was admitted to a hospital. He was 70 years old.

One of his last official orders directed Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, the "radio priest," to make arrangements for a new series of broadcasts. Bishop Gallagher was the staunch friend and defender of Father Coughlin.

RADIO PRIEST WEEPS

Father Coughlin wept when informed of his superior's death.

"Outside my immediate family," Rev. Coughlin said, "my best friend has passed to his deserved reward."

Bishop Gallagher recently returned from the Vatican in Rome to defend Rev. Coughlin against attacks because of the radio priest's outspoken criticism of President Roosevelt prior to the election.

At the bishop's suggestion, Rev. Coughlin apologized for the famous "Franklin Delano Clevelant" when Rev. Coughlin referred to the President as a "liar." The bishop, however, would not condemn the priest for his interest in politics.

BEAT KU KLUX KLAN

Bishop Gallagher earned the "building bishop" title because of the fact many churches, seminaries and hospitals were built throughout lower Michigan while he directed the diocese.

He also was known as the "fighting bishop" because of his militant attacks on the Ku Klux Klan in 1920 when the klan started a movement to close parochial schools and force all children to attend public schools. He was successful in the fight.

Cause of his death was a streptococcus infection followed by uremia and cardiac thrombosis.

Waiver Sought On Five-Day Law

Up for a third reading in the legislature today was a bill authorizing special justice of Massachusetts courts to waive the five-day law regulating issuance of marriage licenses.

The House voted 79 to 50 in favor of the bill, in spite of a warning sounded by Representative Roland D. Sawyer, Ware clergyman, who called the proposed statute "Communistic."

MOTHER HURT IN N. H. FIRE

Portsmouth, N. H., Jan. 21 (AP)—A Dunbid mother of three children, ranging in age from six months to two and a half years, suffered serious burns and two of the children minor burns before rescued from a fire had swept their attic room today.

Mrs. Thelma Call suffered burns about the face, arms and legs; James, one and one-half years, burns about the legs, and Ronald, two and one-half years, burns around the face, neck and right arm. With the six months' old child, who was uninjured, they were taken to a hospital.

Firemen found the mother fighting the flames and carried her and the children from the apartment.

Eleven others fled unassisted from a lower floor.

Brotherhoods Ask 20 P.C. Pay Boost

Chicago, Jan. 21. (AP)—A flat 20 per cent wage increase for some 300,000 union railroad workers was asked today of five railroad brotherhoods.

Members of a joint committee representing the five unions agreed last night to present demands for the pay hike. The decision ended a week-long deadlock.

The increase would mean an additional $116,500,000 annually in the pay envelopes of the five brotherhoods.

BIRTHDAY BALL WILL FEATURE 6-FT. CAKE

Greater Boston residents will have their first opportunity next Monday and Tuesday of seeing the monster birthday cake to be cut at the Birthday Ball of the President at the Boston Garden on Friday night, January 29.

The huge cake, six feet high and 1536 pounds in weight, will be on exhibition at the South Station Monday and Tuesday.

North Station commuters will view it the three remaining days before the big party, one of 5000 throughout the country where "millions will dance that thousands may walk."

Proceeds derived from the sale of souvenir snipped smaller cakes, as well as from chunks that will be cut from the big cake, will be added to the proceeds of the ball, which will be distributed on a basis of 70 per cent to local hospitals and institutions caring for infantile sufferers and the remainder to national research.

Already great mixing bowls are being put to a severe test to prepare the ingredients, and artists who are specialists in treating confectioner's sugar and transforming it with delicate tracery and design, are prepared to put the finishing touch to their masterpiece.

For the past three years the Boston cake has rated No. 1 in the birthday cakes for the President throughout the 48 states and territories, and the designers of the 1937 product promise that all previous efforts will be excelled. Yearly there has been an improvement wherever possible, and the latest creation promises to be unique in design and workmanship.

New Test for Old

Age Pension Bill Confronts Maine

Augusta, Me., Jan. 21 (AP)—An old age pension bill, the funds for which would be obtained from multiple sources—including a state income tax—was introduced in the Maine Legislature today by Representative William P. Donahue (D.) of Biddeford.

Donahue said he estimated the income derived under his bill would approximate $5,000,000 annually, which would be ear-marked for old age pensions.

All persons more than 65 years old would receive an income of $30 a month, irrespective of dependency.

The bill also provided for an appropriation of $200,000 for each of the next two years from "general funds," and would take $700,000 annually from the profits made on sales of liquor in state stores.

An annual $2 tax on each hotel room rented to the public and a $5 levy on each "summer camp" also would be imposed.

Another provision would increase the state's share of commissions on pools of all pari-mutuel contributions from 3½ per cent to 8½ per cent and provide for the allotment of 50 per cent of such receipts to old age pensions.

The bill would legalize games of skill, slot machines and beano games and provide an annual license fee of $500 payable by each distributor and an annual $100 fee for each machine accessible to the public.

A tax of 75 per cent of all interest, in excess of five and one-half per cent, collected by small loan agencies also would be levied.

Motor vehicles entering the state and carrying passengers for hire or merchandise would pay from one and one-half to three cents a mile from the "port of entry" to the destination or place of leaving the state, according to the gross weight and the load.

The income tax section of the bill provided for a tax of 1½ per cent on incomes derived through employment, trade profession or business in excess of $2,000.

Allowed exemptions under this phase of the measure would include $1000 for husband or wife and $250 each for each child or parent dependent upon the taxpayer.

Taxes on incomes from bonds, notes and dividends would range from 1 per cent on less than $5000 to 6 per cent on all in excess of $5000.

Partnerships, associations or trusts would pay an annual tax of 6 per cent on income derived from their property if received by an inhabitant of the state.

Annuities would be taxed at the rate of 1½ per cent.

Profits in purchases or sale of intangible personal property would be taxed at the rate of three per cent.

Domestic and foreign business corporations operating in this state would pay annually a total excise not less than 1-20th of one per cent of the fair value of their capital stock.

BALK SUICIDE BY DELAYS ON PHONE

illuminating gas?" he asked.

"Gas that comes out of the gas stove—the gas from the jet," was the reply.

"See here, little girl," Faye told the caller, "what do you want to do a thing like that for? You're making a big mistake."

"I am desperate and I want to die, I told you. Now you tell me how long I will have to wait before I pass out."

Faye tried another method.

"You listen to me," he warned. "If you have any get jet open you shut it right now. I have just sent two police officers to your apartment."

SUDDENLY HANGS UP

The caller suddenly hung up before Faye was able to get a telephone operator to check on the other end of the line.

He waited. It was all he could do. Then the phone rang again. It was the same voice.

"I just called back to tell you I'm going," the girl said. "But it takes such a long time that I don't you tell me how long it takes to die?"

At the words, Faye flashed Miss Carroll on another telephone, while he kept the caller talking. Her voice was getting weaker now and she went on:

"I can feel a ringing in my ears. How much longer?"

Miss Carroll was giving police the address of the phone when Faye heard again:

"How much longer?" and then a thump.

BATTER IN DOOR

Police were speeding to the Boylston street apartment by now. Special Officers Daniel Donahue, Leo Hearns and Chester Murray traced the gas by the odor. They had to batter down the Mullaney apartment door.

They found the young bride fully clothed, lying across a kitchenette gas stove.

A pair of baby's hostess were on a shelf close by. The telephone was still clutched in the girl's hand.

The hostess, it turned out when the would-be suicide was completely identified, were those of a three-months-old daughter of the girl—a baby who didn't live with its mother.

Mrs. Mullaney, police said they learned, is the wife of a Roxbury man. How long the couple have been separated the bride would not say.

The Boston Evening American found out that the young couple had eloped to Salem, N. H., on September 5, and had been married there by the Rev. Delia Desrula sexton.

The girl who sought death is the former Harriet Marion of Los Angeles and the daughter of Gilbert Martyn of Rose Hill, Me.

Both Faye and Miss Carroll were highly praised by their superiors, and both declined to take any credit.

"It was just another emergency call," Miss Carroll said. "We get plenty of them, every night in the week—calls for doctors, police and clergymen, too.

"An operator gets used to these things. When I heard the woman's voice first she sounded rational enough. Later I noticed how it was fading. I'm sorry she did what she did, but I'm glad she is living."

Faye had to reporters:

"Forget it, will you? I'm no hero. Anyone might have done the same thing."

But "anyone" might not have, hospital authorities remarked.

Out of the Night Came a Girl's Fading Voice—

Out of the night, a girl's voice on the 'phone to Boston City Hospital and the words, "I want to find out how long it will take gas to kill me . . ." and then Supervisor Philip Faye went into action.

After vainly trying to talk the caller out of her morbid plan, he flashed Kenmore branch operator Gertrude A. Carroll of Roxbury and told her to wait for the voice again.

The voice on the phone did call again, and while Faye kept conversation going, Miss Carroll traced the caller. Then she sent police racing to a Boylston street apartment.

LEADERS SEE UNCHANGED NEW DEAL

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, Jan. 21—The second phase of the New Deal began officially today while the capital still reverberated to the celebration of triumphant and exuberant Democrats.

President Roosevelt drew no detailed diagram for his second phase of the New Deal in his inaugural address. But he did sketch in broad outline the underlying philosophy of it.

It was found in those paragraphs which spoke of the end of the depression, but which still found "one third of the nation ill-housed, ill-clad, ill-nourished."

"The test of our progress," he said, "is not whether we add more to the abundance of those who have much; it is whether we provide enough for those who have too little."

SEE DEAL UNCHANGED

From that, observers came to the conclusion that the second phase of the New Deal will be much like the first—that the administration for four years more is going to concern itself with narrowing the gap that exists between the top and the bottom of the economic heap.

How this is to be accomplished Mr. Roosevelt did not say. But the inaugural speech, taken in connection with the message to Congress, in which he boldly admonished the judiciary to get in step with the other two branches of the government, furnished ample evidence that Mr. Roosevelt intends to hew to the original lines of the New Deal.

Presumably, this involves the resurrection of the basic principles of the invalidated National Recovery Administration and the Agricultural Adjustment Administration which gave the federal government power to regulate hours, wages, and working conditions of labor, and to regulate and control agricultural production and use of land. The Supreme Court has said in several decisions that the federal government does not now possess such authority under the Constitution.

DIVIDED OVER ADDRESS

With that, Mr. Roosevelt does not agree. In his annual message to Congress a few weeks ago he said the trouble lay not in the Constitution itself, but in what he described as "narrow interpretation" of the Constitution. He had evidently in mind a famous phrase of Chief Justice Hughes:

"The Constitution is what the Judges say it is."

The inaugural address, delivered under weather conditions such as Washington has seldom seen, approached and never equaled, left many questions unanswered.

Democrats, as was natural, were loud in their praise of it today. So, too, were some Republicans. But it dealt specifically with no issues now confronting the country, and as a working map of what the country may expect during the next four years it left much to future determination.

JIM ROOSEVELT PUPIL OF FATHER'S POLITICS

By GEORGE DURNO
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, Jan. 21—President Roosevelt, who told the nation in his inaugural address he was still pursuing a solution of the problems of America's under-privileged, has another definite objective in the next four years upon which he failed to touch publicly.

This is the political education of his eldest son, James Roosevelt of Boston.

Those close to the White House agreed today that the President was priming his 29-year-old son to carry on the Roosevelt name in the world of politics.

To this end, James Roosevelt has been brought to Washington as a third member of the White House secretariat and installed in one of the three big secretarial offices, even though his commission does not become officially effective until July 1, when the next budget begins.

Mr. Roosevelt has told callers that his eldest son has a distinct political flair which he wishes to encourage.

James Roosevelt today is occupying the office that Secretary Stephen T. Early had before he moved into the quarters of the late Louis McHenry Howe, first political secretary of the Roosevelt regime.

Already the younger Roosevelt has been forced to receive a steady stream of visitors. Senators, congressmen, government officials and others with propositions to lay before the President, Secretary Marvin H. McIntyre of Early have been beating a path to his door to "pay respects"—and, according to reports, quite incidentally to mention the real purpose of their White House call.

It appeared to observers that many of these "respects payers" were hopeful their cause would be enhanced if they got the ear of a son in a father-and-son relationship.

Some of the older New Deal politicians pessimistically fear James Roosevelt will stub his toe politically before long. They recall his lack of success in becoming a factor in Massachusetts, where he tied himself to the faction of ex-Governor James M. Curley, defeated for the Senate by young Republican Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr.

N. E. STUDENTS AT PARTY

By GEORGE BRADY

Washington, Jan. 21—There was only sunshine today in the nation-wide quest for Massachusetts' 20 most fortunate boys and girls.

Though the rain that poured during the inaugural exercises continued throughout the night, these young people, winners in the Boston Evening American Inauguration Tour Contest didn't care a bit.

At 15 Dupont Circle, former summer White House, scene of the world's outstanding social events, they danced and sang to the success of President Roosevelt's second administration.

Their hostess was Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, noted society leader and Washington Herald publisher.

With them were more than 200 students from New York, Chicago, San Francisco, Seattle and Los Angeles. And a large delegation of misfortunes from Annapolis.

Charles Savage, Jr., of Boston Latin schools and Joseph E. Boothroyd of Maynard high school, told the middies how football is played on the Bay State, and Walter and they went into a prolonged conference, all others barred.

Ethel Shaw of Framingham and Walter Chaulk of Rindge Technical school sang a duet with Frances Mayflower Hunt of Minnesota. They scored such a hit with both musicians and audience that they were compelled to sing no less than five times.

Ethel Walker of Salem high school, Elsie Sea-Patterson of Gilford high school, Boston, Virginia King of Everett high school and Mary Cuffman of Springfield Classical high school didn't sing.

The reason was that they were too busy with the Annapolis midshipmen, a dozen of whom formed themselves into a "reception squad" to receive the girls at the naval academy late today.

Elliot Rowland of Arlington High School, John C. Hahn of Randolph, Weston High and Ernest Singer of Boston Latin School disappeared for a minutes around midnight.

All three young men were soon located in the dining room, holding court with no less than 17 young women from the South and Far West.

"It's their positively wonderful New England accent," declared the girls.

President Asks Trade Pact Extension as Aid to Peace

Washington, Jan 21 (AP)—President Roosevelt urged Congress today to continue the administration reciprocal trade treaty program as a means of promoting "durable peace" and a "balanced economic recovery."

His appeal was made in a letter to Chairman Houghton of the House ways and means, before which Secretary Hull appeared in person to ask passage of a measure extending the trade policy three years.

Mr. Roosevelt said the nation's "vigorous initiative in the field of liberalization of commercial policies has been an important factor in asserting the world trend toward national economic isolation, which seemed almost irresistible three years ago."

BARRIERS TO TRADE

Asserting the task was by no means finished, Mr. Roosevelt said "emergency conditions" still exist in international trade relations and excessive barriers continue to operate against American trade.

"Their reduction," he wrote, "continues to be an essential requirement of a full and balanced economic recovery for our country.

"In the period which lies immediately ahead, our ability to act swiftly and effectively in the field of commercial policy will be indispensable, if the present favorable and promising trend toward a normalization and expansion of international trade, upon a friendly and constructive basis of fair-dealing and equal treatment, is to go forward."

Of even greater importance, Mr. Roosevelt said, was the effect of liberalizing trade practices on international peace.

AID TO WORLD PEACE

"Economic strife, resulting from inordinate or discriminatory trade barriers," the President said, "is one of the most fruitful sources of political animosity and military conflict.

"A policy designed to reduce excessive trade barriers and to establish equality of trade rights is a powerful instrument of economic appeasement and stability. It thus serves to strengthen the foundations of world peace.

"In the present unfortunate state of world affairs we dare not, in justice to ourselves, relax our effort, or abate the vigor of our leadership, in a world-wide movement for durable peace through economic prosperity."

BULL CITES BENEFITS

During the Hull hearing Representative Treadway (R) Massachusetts, outstanding foe of the trade treaty program, asked the Secretary whether in "the restoration of mutually profitable international trade," the United States had profited more or less than nations with which trade pacts were concluded.

Hull said he thought teh United States had beenfitte das much as other nations.

Hull said he thought teh United States had beenfitte das much as other nations.

Reading figures he said were compiled by the Commerce Department, Representative Knutson (R) Minnesota, said they showed in 1934 United States exports exceeded imports by $478,000,000; in 1935 by $250,000,000 and in the first 11 months of 1936 by $49,000,000.

HULL-KNUTSON CLASH

"Knutson asked: "Mr. Secretary, do you recall any time when there was more unrest in the world?"

Hull shot back, "Yes, I can recall when there were 40,000,000 people in this country wanting something to eat or wear."

When Knutson mentioned trade balances again ,Hull raised his voice to say:

"Let's get rid of our microscopes, and for the Lord's sake deal with the fundamentals of world peace!"

Later Knutson wanted to know about progress in working out a trade agreement with Great Britain.

Hull said "Every phase" of the matter was being considered.

QUIZ 13 HOBOES IN KIDNAP HUNT

Seattle, Jan. 21 (AP)—The hunt for Charles Mattson's kidnaper-killer turned to questioning here today of 13 "Shanty Town" residents, rounded up in a police drive against itinerants. Many were found possessing firearms.

The 13 were held in jail overnight, fingerprinted and the prints turned over to Federal agents.

At Beverly Hills, Calif., a man was held, identified by Detective Lieutenant C. H. Anderson as Oliver B. O'Neil, a 32-year-old prizefighter, of Chicago.

Anderson said Federal agents had questioned O'Neil in the Mattson case and had sent his fingerprints to Washington.

Presumably officers had prints of the kidnaper, who seized 10-year-old Charles in his Tacoma home Dec. 27, killed the boy and dumped his beaten body in the snow near Everett, but a prison official questioned the presumption.

There was no indication officers had found anything leading toward solution of the crime.

Cape Ann Inland Waterway Plan

An inland waterway from Hampton river, N. H., to Cape Ann, in Massachusetts, to be used for yachting, commercial and military defense purposes, is being pushed by New Hampshire and Massachusetts officials.

It is proposed to have a five-mile waterway from Hampton harbor to the Merrimack river dredged to a depth of nine feet at mean low water.

How to Ease a Cold Quickly

1. Take 2 BAYER ASPIRIN tablets and drink a full glass of water. Repeat treatment in 2 hours.
2. If throat is sore, crush and stir 2 BAYER ASPIRIN tablets in ½ glass of water. Gargle twice. This eases throat rawness and soreness almost instantly.

Get Quick-Acting, Quick-Dissolving Bayer Aspirin. Take 2 Tablets

The modern way to ease a cold is this: Two Bayer Aspirin tablets the moment you feel a cold coming on. Then repeat, if necessary, according to instructions in the box.

At the same time, if you have a sore throat, crush and dissolve three BAYER tablets in one-third glass of water. And gargle with this mixture twice.

The Bayer Aspirin you take internally will act to combat the fever and pains which usually accompany colds. The gargle will provide almost instant relief from rawness and pain, acting like a local anesthetic on the irritated membrane of your throat.

Try this way. Your doctor, we know, will endorse it. For it is a quick, effective means of combating a cold. Ask for Bayer Aspirin by the full name at your druggist's — not for "aspirin" alone.

REBELS LAUNCH NEW FURIES ON MADRID

By the Associated Press

Air and ground battles broke with new violence on the Madrid and Malaga fronts of warring Spain today.

Neutrality efforts stood stock still. But Italy and Germany will inform Great Britain shortly, it was learned, that foreign financial aid and propaganda must be eliminated from Spain along with foreign volunteers.

The League of Nations Council met at Geneva to discuss both the need of Germany for raw materials and Spanish government protests against alleged Italo-German violation of its sovereignty.

Fascist and Socialist airplanes fought a machine gun battle over Madrid. Fascist insurgents struck back at the Socialist government ground forces for an almost-successful attack on the "Hill of Angels" north of Madrid.

Insurgent planes bombed Southern Malaga, on the sea, laying the groundwork for assault by troops.

From Valencia the Spanish government announced the Spanish gold reserve was under guard in Spain. There have been reports the bullion had been shipped abroad.

Terrific Battle Rages For 'Key' Spanish City

Gibraltar, Jan. 21 (INS)—A fierce battle, apparently conducted on land, sea and in the air, broke out in the vicinity of Gibraltar today as Spanish Loyalists were reported seeking to recapture Marbella, keypoint on the road to Malaga which they lost to the Rebels earlier this week.

The Loyalists' offensive also was believed aimed at recapture of Estepona, Spain. Intense firing was audible and almost continuous gun flashes were visible in the direction of the two towns.

Flashes also were seen over the straits of Gibraltar by watchers on Europa point. The fighting ships could not be identified.

Rebel Submarine Caught In Fishermen's Nets

Barcelona, Jan. 21 (INS)—When fishermen off Tarragona tried to pull in their nets, according to reports here today, they found them too heavy, nearing into the blue depths, they found they had caught a queer fish: a Rebel submarine.

MRS. LANE DIES IN REVERE

Mrs. Mary E. (Divin) Lane, 67, a native of Boston and a Revere resident for the past 21 years, died yesterday after a brief illness at her home at 304 Ocean avenue, Revere.

Mrs. Lane was long active in civic, civic and religious circles. She was particularly interested in the religious affairs of the St. Vincent's Institute and the Immaculate Conception Church, and was a member of the Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters.

She is survived by three sons, Frederick, Boston American sports writer; Arthur, Boston American circulation department employe; Raymond, a Boston police clerk, and a daughter, Miss Mildred Lane, a bank clerk.

Funeral services will be held Saturday morning from the home of Frederick Lane at 10 Brookland avenue, Revere. A solemn high mass of requiem will be sung in the Immaculate Conception Church, Revere.

Her late husband, Jonathan V. Lane, died five years ago.

Struck by Train, Newton Man Lives

Ulysses S. Jones, 67, of Church street, Newton, escaped death today when he was struck by a New York-bound train at the Dedham-Needham station.

There were no witnesses to the accident, but police believe that he was side-swiped by the train.

Jones was taken to Newton Hospital and found suffering from lacerations of the head and a possible fractured skull. He is an assistant office manager in a Boston bank.

Bathtub Killer to Die Tonight

Score Evened By Chair

Ossining, N. Y., Jan. 21 (INS)—John Fiorenza began the last day of his life today in Sing Sing nursing a bitter grudge against a man who is charged with committing the same kind of a crime as he did.

The white man who murdered Mrs. Nancy Titterton fumed against the Negro who allegedly slew Mrs. Mary Harriet Case in New York recently.

If it hadn't been for that "inconsiderate" crime, Fiorenza reasoned, he might have had some hope of gaining clemency from Governor Lehman. Now, everything is lost.

Everything seems lost, too, for three other men due to be electrocuted tonight. All three are Negroes. They lost hope when they learned Governor Lehman probably would still be in Washington at the hour of execution.

Chester White, 32, who killed his sweetheart, Mrs. Fanny Jarvis, and her daughter, in Nassau county, moaned:

"I never got me into this mess!"

There was a little bit of deathhouse heroism in the case of Charles Ham, 28, and Frederick Fowler, 19. Ham has been trying to convince authorities that Fowler had nothing to do with the holdup murder of Henry Deissing in New York.

But the authorities haven't shown any signs of believing him.

The "terrible, unclean" Fiorenza, who threw Mrs. Titterton into a bathtub after murdering her, last Good Friday, lamented to the guards:

"Once I thought something would save me. But that Case murder turned everybody against me all over again. It shot all my chances to pieces."

GILBERT, COURT CLERK, DIES

Alexander M. Gilbert, 55, for 14 years court stenographer in the First Criminal Session, Middlesex County Court, died at his home, 45 Rindge avenue, Cambridge, this morning.

Announcement of Gilbert's death was made by Judge John E. Swift to a crowded courtroom. Judge Swift paid tribute to Gilbert's efficiency.

Gilbert was one of the best known court stenographers in the state and had worked at many famous trials. He had been often complimented for his efficiency. He worked under practically every judge of the Superior bench.

He had been ill for several months, but worked until three weeks ago. He leaves a wife, Jacqueline.

2 PLEAD INNOCENT IN DUEL OVER DOG

Edgartown, Jan. 21 (AP)—Two Oak Bluffs men, friends for years, pleaded innocent in district court today to assaulting each other with intent to murder. Judge Abner L. Bixby continued the case and ordered them held in $500 bail each.

They are Alden H. Childs, 37, proprietor of a variety store, and Frank Rich 40, formerly of Waterford, Conn., who were charged with dueling early today. Mr. former used a shotgun, Childs a rifle and the latter with a shotgun.

Knott Clerk Philip J. Norton told police he had been friendly for a long time and had been accustomed to hunt together. Recently, Norton said the quarrel was over Rich's dog.

Childs charged Rich with feeding his thoroughbred hound dog which was tied up preparatory to being used for breeding purposes. Rich became angry and assaulted Childs who retaliated with a hunting knife, Norton said.

Then the court clerk continued, Rich ran for his shotgun and Childs for his rifle. Rich shot Childs twice and the latter needed medical attention, Norton said.

State Trooper George C. Barker obtained a warrant against Rich, who in turn swore out a complaint against Childs. Their arraignments followed.

5 QUESTIONED IN KENNEDY ROBBERY

Worcester, Jan. 21—Five persons, two of them women, were subjected to all-night questioning in the $120,000 William J. Kennedy home holdup, it was revealed today.

After the extended examination of the five—not officially listed as suspects in the actual Southboro raid—it was intimated that recovery of at least a portion of the jewel loot is near.

BROUGHT FROM BOSTON

They were questioned in the office of District Attorney Owen A. Hoban under the direction of Captain John Stokes and Joseph L. Ferrari of the State Police.

Some of those questioned were brought from Boston.

After quizzing police took the five to a suite of rooms in the Bancroft Hotel.

The Boston Evening American reporter was told there is "a new break in the case as the result of the questioning."

County officers were on their way to Miami, Fla., today to bring back Joseph Bollina, 28, held on complaint of Massachusetts authorities, who accuse him of complicity in the Kennedy robbery.

REDUCE MRS. LEWES BAIL

Judge James C. Donnelly, in Superior Court, today allowed a reduction from $7,500 to $2,500 in the bail of Mrs. Dorothy Cullen Lewes, of Boston. Mrs. Lewes is held under indictment as an accessory after the fact in the robbery.

The bail reduction was allowed on petition of Adam Aronofsky, counsel, and with the approval of Dist. Atty. Hoban. A request for reduction of the bail of Samuel Linden, 39, of Boston, held on indictment on a charge of armed robbery, was denied.

Aronofsky told the court the woman had been arrested on suspicion and had not been identified.

He said she had been ill at the jail and was unable to eat the jail food that she required constant medical attention.

Counsel declared that the woman had lived in Boston all her life and she had never been in court on

Harry G. Gallagher, Deputy Sheriff, Dies After Crash

HARRY G. GALLAGHER

Injuries he received when his automobile skidded into a street car on Neponset avenue, Dorchester, brought death to Deputy Sheriff Harry G. Gallagher, in City Hospital today.

Gallagher, who lived at 3 Everton street, Dorchester, was en route to his home when the accident occurred. Apparently blinded by the snow storm, he turned his machine sharply after a woman had stepped in front of his car and the machine went into a skid, sideswiping the street car.

So terrific was the impact that Gallagher's machine turned over twice, landing on the sidewalk

Washington, Jan. 21 (AP)—Governor Lewis O. Barrows and the entire Maine congressional delegation made a "courtesy call" today and she had never been in court on President Roosevelt.

BATES RESIGNS TO HEAD U. S. BOYS' CLUBS

Sanford Bates, Massachusetts Commissioner of Correction for 19 years and who has been director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons since 1929, today resigned that position to accept the executive directorship of the Boys' Clubs of America, it was announced today.

William E. Hall, president of the youth organization, made the announcement and said Bates would assume office on February 1.

The main purpose of the Boys' Clubs throughout the country is "the making of boys into good citizens, at the same time aiding in the prevention of crime."

Bates is a graduate of English High school and the Y. M. C. A. Evening Law school. At one time he practiced law in Boston and also served in the state legislature.

Three years before his federal appointment he served on a commission named by William Randolph Hearst to make a survey of the crime situation throughout the country for the Hearst newspapers.

President Roosevelt expressed regret over Bates' resignation, but said the type of work Bates will undertake—extension of the Boys' Clubs character building program and facilities in neglected, high density areas—"is of vital importance and presents a congenial task for which, in every way, you are abundantly qualified."

Bates visited the President to say goodbye, it was reported from Washington.

There were indications that James V. Bennett of Providence, R. I., would succeed Bates. Bennett has been assistant director since 1929.

Lynn Man Plunges To Death in N. Y. Hotel

"Sheldon A. Veale, 36, of Lynn, plunged to his death today from the ninth floor of a Lexington avenue hotel in New York."

This was the news flash heard over the radio today by Mrs. Elmer Ricker of Carter road, Lynn.

She gasped in surprise. The victim was her brother.

She notified her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Veale, who were in another part of the house at the time.

The parents later declared to a reporter their son had been home for Christmas and only a week ago they had received a letter from him. In it, they said, he complained of his health.

According to a New York dispatch, Veale had been ill with influenza although yesterday he told a hotel employe he was feeling better. He had been occupying the room of a friend, Charles Neagle, a general theatrical manager.

His body, partly clothed, landed on a third floor extension.

Veale served overseas in the World War.

Veale, according to his parents, worked for a number of hotels.

By BETTY ALDEN

THIS COLUMN is supposed to be a chronicle of the comings and goings of the social world . . . and not a forum for the discussion of weighty subjects such as modes of existence and systems of economics.

But every once in a while we hear so much of one side of a story that we feel the other side should be allowed to see the light of day . . . In our position as a sort of "go-between" between society and the world of the working girl, we are constantly bombarded with the opinions of amateur economists and parlor pinks . . .

They invariably say "I don't see how you can stand it all day long . . . meeting and talking with girls who don't know anything and whose sole interest is their own entertainment" . . . "The American society girl," say the pinks, "is the most pathetic example of the weakness of capitalism . . . She is given everything she wants and is not controlled or directed" or words to that effect . . . to which a college professor invariably adds, in a horror-struck voice, "most of them don't even go to college" . . .

Right now, when the provisional members of the Junior League are hard at work with the studies of their training course, it seems an opportune time to mention a few of the more serious and practical activities of the young ladies who are so often referred to as "fickle social butterflies . . ."

RACHEL WARNER
President of Junior League

Activities of the Junior League . . . which so many people suppose to be merely a gay sorority for the promotion of plays and dances . . . actually give an excellent insight into the way society girls spend their time when they are not dressed up in party frocks . . .

It is true that membership in the League is restricted to girls of social position . . . and that they endeavor as everyone else does, to make their activities as friendly and as much fun as possible . . .

But the purpose of the League is far from frivolous . . . Many girls, both wealthy and otherwise, have a desire to work for charitable organizations and to assist those less fortunate than themselves . . . and the Junior Leagues (there are some 125 of them all over the country) were established to co-ordinate and direct the efforts of groups of workers . . .

All Must Take Training Course

AS MOST OF THE girls are not professionally trained, the object has been to devise a working partnership between them and skilled doctors, nurses and welfare workers . . . In order to fit them for this work and make their assistance of value, every girl elected to the League is required to take the training course to show that she has taken its equivalent elsewhere . . .

The newly elected member is usually a debutante, just out of finishing school . . . and she is admitted as a full-fledged member only after she has taken the provisional course and passed an examination . . . the course includes lectures on all the problems of life, and social conditions in a modern city, together with field work in hospitals, settlements and charitable organizations, which offers an opportunity to put theory into actual practice . . .

Subjects covered in their lectures have been said to equal 18 months of a full college course, and the actual work with less fortunate and handicapped men, women and children, gives the girls a more accurate knowledge of "how the other half lives" . . . and of a life which is not all servants, limousines, and parties, than would be absorbed in years of undirected charitable assistance to a few worthy cases which might come to their attention . . .

Many girls devote a full seven-hour day, five days a week, to the work of the League . . . and still find time to attend parties and keep up their social activities . . . Their work does not become tiresome because it is not confined to one charity or one activity . . .

League's Calendar Busy, Varied One

A REVIEW of a year's program at the League includes not only such generally educational things as art exhibits, exhibits of paintings and drawings done by members, and lecture courses on a wide variety of subjects . . . but also the production of one act nursery plays to entertain children in settlements and hospitals who seldom see a movie or Micky Mouse . . .

The annual Christmas play always nets a good profit for charity because the girls who produce it are scrupulously frugal in their productions . . . actually manufacturing and painting the scenery and stage sets, and designing and making the costumes themselves . . .

They have become adept home to house salesmen and doorbell pushers . . . each year they conduct a drive to gather used books and magazines to replenish the book shelves of sailors in the Merchant Marine . . .

When the depression was at its worst they organized a house to house canvas to find odd jobs for unemployed . . .

Girls in the Glee Club take cheer and music into old folks' homes and give frequent concerts for groups of shut-ins in hospitals and homes for the aged . . .

All these special activities are in addition to the regular everyday work of the girls, who give their services freely and without remuneration, to assist doctors, nurses, physical therapy teachers and social workers in hospitals, settlements and all sorts of kindred institutions . . .

Bellarmine Academy Group at Lecture

ALARM CLOCKS ring early on Wednesday mornings for Bostonians interested in the affairs of the Bellarmine Academy. Then off to the Commonwealth Country Club where coffee and doughnuts are served before the lecture of the day.

At yesterday's meeting, Mrs. Leo Nawn and Mrs. James Malone displayed the fascinating beverage, the former in a costume suit of black wool and satin, the latter (formerly a hostess) in ensemble with tiny hands at Persian.

Book Review

Miss Hector Rossetie Gay presented the day's book review and Mrs. Edward McLaughlin directed activities of the round table which followed. Chesterton's autobiography.

Close to a hundred members attended the talk which Rev. Leslie Sullivan, S.J., of the Weston Jesuit College gave concerning the founding of Christian Science.

Father Sullivan will be the feature of the next two meetings and will be followed on February 17 and February 24 with a lecture on "Social Justice" by Rev. Robert Hewitt, S.J. The March series of lectures open with two lectures by Rev. Anthony MacCormack, S.J., on "Male's Mysterious Overlord—The Brain."

The next two talks will deal with marriage. The speaker will be Rev. William Moriarty, his topic "Christian Marriage"; "Modern Prose," "Woman's Place in The World" and "Faith and Prosperity" are the subjects of the final three talks to be given at the April meetings.

Miss Hayes, the club's secretary, fulfilled her usual role. She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. William J. Barry, who chose a chic ensemble of black and white. Mrs. William Canavan brought no less than four guests to yesterday's conference. Her daughter, Ruth, was smartly togged in pale green tweeds and Mrs. James B. T. McManus, Mrs. George Coyne and Mrs. John J. Hussey were smartly costumed in mid-winter ensembles.

Mrs. Raoul Beaudreau came to yesterday's meeting as the guest of Mrs. M. L. Ryan, who also entertained Mrs. Joseph O'Connell, Mrs. Joseph Connolly and Mrs. John Walsh, whose fuchsia costume was exceedingly chic.

Hurley-Lynch Ceremony

At one of the prettiest of recent winter weddings Mary Cecilia Lynch, daughter of Mrs. William J. Lynch of Dorchester, became the bride of William T. Hurley, Jr., of Dorchester, in St. Peter's Church.

The bride, who wore a French lace gown and carried a huge bouquet of lilies, was attended by her sister, Elinor. The groom had his brother, D. Fred Hurley, as his best man. The bride was given away by her brother, William J. Lynch.

The Dorchester couple are now on an extended wedding trip to Florida, the West Indies and South America. When they return they will make their home in West Roxbury.

Miss Lynch, a graduate of Burdett's Secretarial School, was connected with Northeastern University.

Mr. Hurley was graduated from Boston University.

"It is through the medium of newspaper selling that the modern youth acquaints himself with the various ways men in keen competition which will enable him to compete successfully in later years.

"Then, again, the Sunday Advertiser should be lauded for the opportunity it affords him to become familiar with the true value of the dollar.

Mrs. Butler Soloist at Concert

MRS. MORGAN BUTLER (Bernice Fisher) of Beacon street was one of the soloists at the third concert of the season given by the MacDowell Club yesterday afternoon.

A great many of her friends and associates in the present day social world, as well as those who admired her in the days when she was Boston's youngest grand opera star were present to hear her.

Since her marriage to the son of former Senator William Butler and her retirement from opera, Mrs. Butler has confined her singing to charitable affairs, but her performance of "Isolde" in "Tristan Und Isolde" is still one of the cherished memories of those who were regular patrons of the old Boston Opera House. She is the mother of Mrs. Lawrence Grinnell, the former Elizabeth Butler, and of William Morgan Butler, 2d.

One of the most appreciative guests at yesterday's concert was Mrs. Jeska Schwartz Morse, contralto and former singing partner of Mrs. Butler, who attended with Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller.

Others present include Miss Susannah Dabney, Mrs. Langdon Frothingham, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. William Dunnell; Miss Helen Banney, honorary president of the Mayflower Club; Miss Josephine Griffeths, president; Mrs. Charles French, Mrs. James Cuningham Gray with her daughter, Katharine C. Gray; Morris Carter, Mrs. Edgar Pierce, Mrs. John T. Holloway, Mrs. Adolf Lesch, Miss Susan Oliver, Miss Gertrude Sands, Miss Betsy Shrigley and Miss Peggy Stuart, composer of seven of the music for recent Vincent Club shows.

Tea to Open Exhibit

When Rev. Dr. Phillips E. Osgood of Emmanuel Church was abroad last summer he buried himself in spare moments by making drawings in black and white, and sometimes in oil paints, of his fellow passengers on shipboard, typical characters of the cities he visited, and scenes, both rural and urban, of England, Scotland and France.

These drawings are to be exhibited to the public in the second of a series of art exhibits at the Workshop of the Boston Y. W. C. A., 140 Clarendon street, beginning next Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock and continuing through January 30.

The exhibit will open with a tea, to which Mrs. Douglas Mercer, chairman of the Workshop, and Miss Ruth Perkins, secretary, have issued invitations. Miss Edith Fisher, chairman of the special exhibits committee will act as hostess at the tea and will be assisted by her committee members, Mrs. Winslow Blanchard of Chestnut street, Mrs. John Gibson of Brookline, Mrs. Henry Kendredine and Mrs. Charles B. Perkins.

Other committee members responsible for the exhibit are Mrs. George Burgess of Wellesley Hills, Mrs. George E. Hills and Mrs. Layton Holloway of Brookline, Mrs. George A. Parker, Mrs. Richard Fuller, Mrs. Greene Fitzhugh, Mrs. Homer Clark and Mrs. J. Redmond Clark.

Gypsy Rose Lee Joins Film Stars in May

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor, Universal Service
Copyright, 1937, by Universal Service

Los Angeles, Jan. 21—Of course we hate to brag, being modest by nature, but remember we told you at least a month ago that Gypsy Rose Lee was about to sign a contract with Darryl Zanuck.

Well, as you probably know by now, that contract is all signed, sealed and delivered and the amazing girl who started as a strip-tease dancer in a burlesque show arrives in Hollywood in May.

Miss Lee, whose beauty and personality landed space in the newspapers and made her one of the most discussed young women on Broadway, will be starred in "Sally, Irene and Mary," with Earl Carroll, glorifier of beautiful girls, staging the show.

Louella O. Parsons

This is the musical that brought stardom to Joan Crawford, Constance Bennett and Sally O'Neil. The other two female roles have not yet been cast, but it is being whispered loudly that Fred Allen, radio funnyman who played in "Thanks a Million," will be co-starred with Miss Lee.

• • •

Fifteen-year-old Betty Jaynes who took Chicago opera lovers by storm when she sang "La Boheme" recently, will shortly bring her glorious voice to the movies. Deanna Durbin certainly paved the way for all other talented youngsters when she sang her way into our hearts in "Three Smart Girls."

Betty it appears, has already arrived in the opera world and receives $1000 for each appearance. She has yet to carve her career in the movies but Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has plans for her and such plans. She will arrive in Hollywood as soon as school is out. Yes, Betty is a junior at a Chicago High school.

• • •

Can you think of a hotter headline line-up in the moment than Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Taylor? No, neither can I, now Gen 20th Century Fox who plans to reunite these two in "Private Enemy." Bob and Barbara made "His Brother's Wife" together last year and it cleaned up at the box-office on the strength of their romance publicity.

This time they are getting a stronger story more worthy of their talents. And hence to this—Vic McLaglen will also be featured along with Stanwyck and Taylor in "Private Enemy" just as soon as he finishes "Wee Willie Winkie" with Mamselle Temple.

• • •

Speaking of Gypsy Rose Lee and her brand new movie contract, she has started something. Now all the other "strip tease" dancers are in demand at the studios. I understand Ann Corio, queen of the field since Gypsy departed, has been offered $2000 weekly by a major Hollywood studio and it is no particular secret that Warners are feeling the gal said to be the most beautiful of them all, Ada Leonard.

All these charmers sing and dance as well as specialize in disrobing, which is just as well considering that they'll wear clothes on the screen, and you can bet your last dollar on that!

• • •

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: Now that the Gloria Swanson-Herbert Marshall romance is deader than last year's song hit, the rumor hounds have been trying to see who might next intrigue the attention of the popular Bart. Gloria, you know, is single and it is no secret that Herbert, head of British Amalgamated Films.)

Up to a week ago Bart did a lot of stagging around town, but lately he has been seen in the company of a very pretty young actress named Lee Russell. They've been noted dining together several times, usually with Howard Hawks along to make it a threesome.

• • •

Brian Aherne's Hollywood friends have been reading with delight the reviews of his "Iago" in Walter Huston's stage version of "Othello." Probably no one reads these notices with more enthusiasm than Mervyn Leroy, for whom Aherne is booked to make two pictures.

The first of these is "The Great Garrick," which goes into production in June after Brian makes a picture in England. Samuel Goldwyn, who, by the way, just returned from a three-week holiday in Sun Valley, is also again interested in Aherne, whose work for him in "Beloved Enemy" is outstanding.

• • •

A LINE OR TWO: Jesse Lasky's negotiations to borrow Bob Burns for a headline spot in "Radio City Revels" looks favorable and the contract may be signed this week. One of my favorite hamoka player to go on loan to RKO . . . Speaking of this lot, they've certainly had their share of trouble with "Robber Baron." First, Al Hall was taken ill and had to relinquish the directorial reins to Rowland Lee. Now Lee is down with the "flu," and with the stars, Edward Arnold and Cary Grant, on six weeks' salary guarantees, it begins to look as though the delays might run up plenty of production costs on this one.

• • •

The versatile Joseph Schildkraut gets one of the most important roles in "Last Slave" at 20th Century Fox, and he deserves the break. •Elsa Argell, French wife of Jacques Deval, is studying English like mad preparing for several exciting screen tests offered her. The slight delay in getting "Short Haul" started at Universal is all over with the signing of Louise Latimer for the leading femme role opposite John Wayne.

Snapshots of Hollywood

Looks like it's more than mamma this time that's separating JUNE LANG and VIC OBSATTI. She was dining tete-a-tete with HOWARD HUGHES at an obscure restaurant the other evening. JUNE is apparently a heartbreaker but we can promise she's met her match in HOWARD HUGHES, rumor strong that PARAMOUNT is angling for letting EDDIE CANTOR'S brother to start his own program; DOROTHY MCGUIRE and TYRONE POWER—two talented youngsters—lunching together at FRANCHON and MARCO. Hollywood Hotels' popular singer and MGM actress will wastle for WALTER WANGER in "Vogues of 1937."

MISCHA AUER says he's an actor and that's why a quarrelsome routine every time he goes to a party that he's planning a new one. Is reconciled with WILLIAM POWELL protecting his interests while JEAN HARLOW works at "Saratoga" by sending her gardenias every day.

JEANETTE MACDONALD whose engage to GENE RAYMOND isn't scheduled until June 17 has already received innumerable wedding presents and the RICHARD ARLENS celebrating their 11th wedding anniversary Hollywood-style. Also planning is GEORGE FITZMAURICE down with flu and fighting hard to start on "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney"; VICTOR FLEMING, who has been very ill in the hospital, reported much improved.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

BOSTON after DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

DEAR DAN COAKLEY: In case you have continued to read the liberal press since becoming a solon, it is surprising that you don't know John Lacey Delaney, whom you call variously the "Frank L. Kane of the Hurley Administration," and "the man of mystery" . . . If you don't know John Lacey Delaney of Cambridge—you as who should—it is probable that most of the public is in doubt as to his identity . . . In such a perilous night as last, with the footing bad and the citizens mostly abed in an inconsiderate disregard for the prosperity of such places as the Lenox Blue Room, the Cocoanut Grove, the Mayfair (where Joe Smith's Orchestra is now playing), for the Bradford Penthouse, and the Hotel Essex French Casino, your correspondent, who knows John Lacey Delaney more than casually, wonders about you, Dan . . . Anyway there's not much news when the snow, sleet and rain are a-slithering down.

GEORGE HOLLAND

At Any Rate:

They used to say, Dan, that you knew everything that took place in Cambridge . . . In fact some cynics went so far as to say that nothing took place in Cambridge unless you said so . . .

John Lacey Delaney is 29 years old, Boston College, '28 . . . He's not as old as he appears, having a shot of grey bordering both ears . . . At 25, he was elected to succeed Governor Charles F. Hurley as a Cambridge school committee-man . . . He was vice-president of the freshman class at college, and the late James M. Curley, Jr., was president . . . He served two times on the Cambridge school committee . . . In 1934 he married Miss Ruth M. Gallagher, daughter of T. Morton Gallagher, a very prominent Republican and able medical examiner, who hails from Newton . . . John Lacey Delaney is the son of the late Mark Delaney, an able politician himself . . .

He is a nephew of a very high churchman in Ogdensburg, N. Y., and a nephew, too, of Dr. Harry O. Lacey, a prominent Cambridge physician, whom you must know surely . . . But it was at the Presidential inauguration, four years ago, that John Lacey Delaney started a climb to fame which eventually landed him in your lap, Dan, and to be fair to your point of view, the connivance is not over to you.

At the Inauguration Day ceremony, a contact arranged by a Boston newspaper man got John Lacey Delaney a real "in" to Senator David I. Walsh . . . Four months after the inauguration, John Lacey Delaney popped up by presidential appointment at the suggestion of—(Oh, come now, Dan, you must know about that) . . . Well, the job was assistant personnel director of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation . . . This job was a political artist's dream of a really large canvas . . . It carried statewide, and state-deep, significance . . . For particulars, ask Bob Washburn . . . What did Walsh win by, Dan? . . . Let's say about 350,000 votes . . . John Lacey Delaney then marked time in the peace and quiet of a Senatorial secretariat . . . Not long thereafter, your alleged mystery man became receiver for the Webster National Bank . . . Quite a career . . .

Soft Music:

A quick flashback shows that John Lacey Delaney made only one glaring mistake . . . When he ran to succeed himself as Cambridge school-committeeman in 1935, he made an untimely wise-crack about the mental capacity of Harvard men . . . Voters who had not visited the polls since James G. Blaine ran for President doddled out of their shelters to vote against Delaney . . . Oh yes! And then he ran for Congress!

Of course, the Hurley-Delaney friendship is not an overnight affair . . . The Governor was an usher at your mystery man's wedding . . . We daresay, Dan, that if you saw Governor Hurley in the act of ushering you probably have had a glance at John Lacey Delaney . . . For some time now, whither went Charles there went John . . .

In brief, Dan, this is written to give you and the other voters a closeup of John Lacey Delaney . . . When you get over your peeve against this able young man, you might take him to your breast . . . This column would appreciate that, because it was in this space first that the ghastly report appeared that such odd creatures as Republicans were being welcomed on Beacon Hill . . .

And they say that was what really got your dander up!

Once Over Lightly:

George Raft is eager to play Boston again . . . After "Souls at Sea" finishes with retakes, he'll be hooked at the Met . . . And Cary Grant, who also claims he's crazy about Boston, is a possibility for an "in person" appearance . . . A guy who hornswoggles downtown bar-standers by showing the angelic likeness decorating the upper reaches of this space and saying he owns it—is being a fib . . . The real owner slinks into places and out again quickly . . . Without glasses . . . First impression of Acting-Mayor John I. Fitzgerald: He should try his luck in running for the real office . . . A banquet for Tom Spry, retiring divisional manager for Warner Bros. in New England, will be held at the Statler next Thursday . . . Nat Furst of New Haven succeeds "Uncle Tom" . . . Purcell's is enlarging, with a new horse-shoe bar due to complement the other two.

RETURN From Hollywood Studio Tour

Mullin, Pinanski Predict Banner Year for Moving Pictures

MARTIN J. MULLIN SAM PINANSKI

Martin J. Mullin and Sam Pinanski of M. & P. Theaters are shown preparing their schedules for the showing of the new film releases. They have just returned from Hollywood where they saw Ann Marsters, star feature writer of the Boston Evening American, at work in many of the films now in production and which will be shown at the M. & P. Theaters.

'The Plainsman' on Bills

"The Plainsman" the new Gary Cooper starring film which was directed by Cecil de Mille, will be the featured attraction, beginning tomorrow at the Scollay Square Theater, and Shirley Temple's latest film, "Stowaway," shares honors with the de Mille film.

Both pictures will be shown also on the screen of the Modern Theater, which changes its Saturday opening date to Friday tomorrow.

Cooper plays "Wild Bill" Hickok in "The Plainsman," and Jean Arthur plays the leading feminine role, that of "Calamity Jane."

Hail 'Maid of Salem' as First Of Sterling Productions

By GEORGE HOLLAND

Ernst Lubitsch as director of the "perfect" Marlene Dietrich picture, one called "Angel"; Cecil de Mille at the megaphone of a super-super called "The Buccaneers"; three pictures ready for early release called "Souls at Sea," "High, Wide and Handsome," and "Waikiki Wedding."

All these items were discussed fluently by Martin J. Mullin and Sam Pinanski, operators of the most extensive theater circuit in East, who are home in Boston after two weeks of Hollywood. That is they WERE home.

* * *

Messrs. Mullin and Pinanski journeyed to the West Coast to attend the Silver Jubilee of Adolph Zukor, guiding-hand of Paramount Pictures. In a fortnight of daily visits to the studio, they saw in the making the pictures Paramount is depending upon in the near future.

"Souls at Sea" is about the place-trade. "High, Wide and Handsome" is a drama with comedy and music and "Waikiki Wedding" is, in case you couldn't guess, a film with a Hawaiian background.

"It was Sam's first visit to Hollywood," Mullin said, speaking of his partner. "I think he made a great little speech at one of the meetings of exhibitors, distributors and producers. He called what he saw out there 'an organization of art.' And that's what it seems to be.

"After what we saw, we are enthusiastic about the product coming out of the Paramount studio. 'Maid of Salem,' which plays Boston today as a first-run, will bear out our optimism, I think.

"Here is a film that handles a very delicate situation so humanly that the New England public is going to believe the picture and enjoy it."

Partner Pinanski spoke up.

"What we saw of 'Souls at Sea,' 'Waikiki Wedding' and 'High, Wide and Handsome' convinced us that these will be splendid attractions. By the way, your own Boston favorite, Ann Marsters, will be in all three pictures," he said.

* * *

The new Dietrich picture will be made by Lubitsch, who once held the directing reins of the entire Paramount studio.

"Lubitsch has no huge organization problems to worry him now," Partner Mullin declared. "His pictures always had a rest and flavor of their own. He thinks that Miss Dietrich in 'Angel' will reach the very peak."

Business is good, thinks you, both in Hollywood and Boston, according to Partners Mullin and Pinanski. They have added another theater, the Hull Theater in Nantasket, to their chain of more than 75, and the biggest year in motion-picture business is 21 days old today, they say.

Crosby Film Held at Loew's

Bing Crosby in "Pennies From Heaven," and the companion picture, "More Than a Secretary" will be held over for another week at both Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters. A week from today, Myrna Loy and William Powell in "After the Thin Man," will take the screens of the local Loew houses.

The title-song of "Pennies From Heaven" became an overnight hit weeks before the picture was shown to Boston audiences. Arthur Johnson, who once arranged Irving Berlin's melodies is composer of the score in collaboration with Joe Burke. Jo Swerling, once a Boston newspaperman, wrote the story.

COMPLEXIONS have changed some during the last few years. The skin and coloring may be almost the same, but we are affecting a darker tone, and like every other fad we adopt, there are always a few who carry it to extremes.

We use much more make-up and natural faces. There is a trend in the style to a natural and unmade look, but we make up as we always have done but we are going to be more clever about its application.

George P. Marshall Puts the Curse On Boston People

WHAT SEEMS TO BE A STRANGE BLEND of truth and [illegible] is preventing Boston from having another professional football team at present to replace the Redskins who left Mr. George P. Marshall when [illegible] our city last November as [illegible] to the cruel daughters who [illegible] his contests. [illegible] Marshall as the Washington D. C. warrenman and sportsman who tried to correct the [illegible] wrongs.

[illegible] Boston Braves, a baseball [illegible] Mr. Marshall has [illegible] he [illegible] came against [illegible] thus ruining the franchise which the Redskins vacated [illegible] Lewis, we infer, applied for the [illegible]

AUSTEN LAKE

This has incensed Mr. Marshall, who spouts smoke, lava and a bit at the mere mention of Boston which is anathema in his nostrils. So, as a trustee of his league, he has kicked on the application, saying that Boston is a hick sport town, ruled by a lot of irresponsible journalists, and is virtually unfit for any big civic enterprise like a professional team. Reflex, he adds, it is obsessed by horse and dog gambling, which is gradually diverting its liquid wealth until it finds time to soak up every citizen with a dollar. Boston, he hints, has lost its soul.

HE HAS HAD A CHANGE OF HEART

THOUGH IT IS POSSIBLE THAT MR. MARSHALL [illegible] is correct at the failure of his investments, it is possible, too, that he speaks with the voice of angels. Because athletic industries hereabouts have, as he says, failed to match the general march of recovery in other commercial lines. There are some exceptions, like professional hockey and the winter sport trades, which flourish at a time when the neighboring horse and dog palaces have been boarded up for the season and the gambling [illegible] has moved to the tropical South. And there were the Red Sox of last summer, which enjoyed a moderate success despite being a conspicuous failure in the field.

HE FOUND US IDEAL

HE WAS HIGH WITH HOPE THEN, was Mr. Marshall. He had bundles of bank notes, some of which were his and some belonging to associates. And, always a persuasive gent with a glib, headlong way of saying one little word after another, so that they sounded less like separate syllables than a musical torrent very soothing to the listener, he had said, "Boston is the ideal sports town of the country, peopled by fine free spenders. Indeed, I have selected them for my people in this enterprise because they are the most appreciative people in this broad land."

[illegible]

IT WORRIES ME NOW TO HEAR MR. MARSHALL'S [illegible] voice condemning the people [illegible] as his people after the manner [illegible] in sickness and health. It makes me wonder whether it is Mr. Marshall [illegible] changed and whether, if we were [illegible]

[illegible] a herd of weasel-hounds skirting [illegible] a Washington [illegible] flock of sick lambs [illegible] at Fort Bragg, N. C., Bingham and Sarnoff [illegible] acquitted [illegible] people as to cardio-thoracic surgical men and [illegible] awarded by irresponsible journalists. I remember that on this September day Mr. Marshall had also said that the Boston people were universally reckoned the most liberal and appreciative customers, if not the world, and men whom a [illegible] regarded less as commercial associates than pals and friends.

[illegible] Mr. Marshall use the last of years in his tones. "What a subject that word is!"

I WISH I HAD THE PENETRATING POWERS to fathom what has happened to Boston during those five short seasons. Because if Mr. Marshall is right about our [illegible] into abject [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in sin and [illegible] our [illegible] the Beacon Hill statement should be wanted to [illegible] [illegible] that measure to legalize bookmaking and authorizing [illegible] of [illegible] gambling concessions, for the sake of skimming [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

It was learned from reliable sources today that Pete Bausch, former Redskins center, may be Northeastern's next grid mentor to succeed Al McCoy, who will leave for Colby's campus next fall.

Bausch, who recently quit pro football because he said there was no future in it, indicated that he was open for a coaching berth with some school.

The former Redskin player is a graduate of Kansas State where he was an all-around athlete. His brother is Jim Bausch, voted the best Olympic performer in 1936.

FRED HOEY Writes:

QUINN DEFENDS 'RAB WARSTLER

SMALL PAY CHECKS FOR EARLY STARS

Hello Everybody! This Is Fred Hoey Speaking!

Bob Quinn, president of the Boston Bees is great copy, as the baseball writers say. You can always depend upon Bob for a timely baseball story. The Bees' head invites questions and he loves to answer them.

FRED HOEY

But there is one way in which one can rub Bob the wrong way. This is to criticize unfairly any of his players. He breathes fire, yet we might add, that in the many years we have known Bob Quinn we have never heard him utter a profane word. That's the kind of a fighting Irishman Bob is.

Quinn's championing of his own players was forcibly brought to mind yesterday when we informed him that New England fans, in corresponding with us, didn't believe Rabbit Warstler, because of his light hitting, would fill the bill at short.

"Let me tell you, Fred," declared Quinn, "I wouldn't swap Warstler for any shortstop in the league. The boy is a perfect marvel at starting or pivoting double plays. It must have been a revelation to the fans to note timely team work of Warstler and Cuccinnello on twin killings last season.

"Select any other shortstop and give him 20 points better batting average, will that man in the field save as many ball games as the Rabbit does? Why that little fellow can go and get them, either side, close in or in the short outfield.

"You can tell your friends, Fred, that Rabbit Warstler is a firm fixture with the Bees. He hits good enough for me. I'm completely sold on him," concluded Quinn, with his eyes flashing.

SPORT WRITERS TO BE JUDGES

New York, Jan. 20 (AP)—The blood and thunder fight mob finds itself in a strange predicament.

[illegible] have one fine up bout before risking my title and it wasn't fair.

"I don't care to offer any alibis except that I wasn't in shape and didn't get a chance to get into shape. I'll bet dollars to spaghetti I can come back again.

"All right. Then I was rematched with McLarnin, and I wonder you boys thought I was punch drunk and goofy that night. Again I didn't get a chance. While sparring one day, a spar-mate bumps me with his head. Result: My lips are so badly torn that it takes eight stitches to sew them up. It left me sick, as I was able to spar but once in 10 days before the fight.

"'Punch drunk.' Through? Not by a long shot. I'm only 29 and still am plenty good. Just as When the time comes I won't [illegible] in my heart I can't train and reach a peak that satisfies me, why, I'll be the first to know it.

"I have asked him to quit" [illegible] but he is convincing me gradually that he's got a lot of fire left. It would be a shame to let Tony Canzoneri fight if he is washed up and I'll not advise it if it is. But almost every day he comes to my office, his eyes shining, and his heart throbbing over the prospects of a comeback.

"I have given him three weeks to prove his right to one more. If I'm not convinced then, Tony will never fight again. I won't even bother with him. I'll give him a look over three weeks from today and I'll have it up to him or the guys."

"It'll be a cinch to convince them guys," laughed Tony.

DURANTE With K. Smith ON AIR

By N. F. T.

If the rumbling radio "Bandwagon" broadcast where Kate Smith is starred, should win dialing favor among other offerings tonight (WEEI) at 8 o'clock, and win such patronage by a nose, it will be the prominent proboscis of one Jimmy Durante, belonging to a sizable smeller that almost anything could happen right under, including a Durante riot.

Jimmy is the principal guest with Kate this evening. Then, too, there's a little lass named Baby Mary Ann, who is only two years old, but possessing a memory better than that of a lot of grown men or women. Mary Ann's well educated vocal chords will pick at will from their willing minds the names of world capitals, great statesmen of history and dates of important happenings and the details. Mary Ann does so with ease.

"N. F. T."

COMPETITIVE CAST

Of course, there's always spirited opposition on the dials these days and nights. No matter how differences are chided, they still grab for the bulk of the air audience, with dialers divided as to choice, but often wishing they might hear two broadcasts at a given time. In any event, likewise this evening, the well known Valley hour (WNAC) also at 8 strokes of your parlor clock and mine (Nora) brings some talented troupers to be heard. That young Brooklyn fighter, Sydney Franklin, is one, Walter "Virginia Judge" Kelly is another, with the humorous Edgar Bergen, ventriloquist, and Roland Young of the films rounding out the guest galaxy.

Come 9 o'clock tonight (WNAC) and "Showboat" sailing time on the waves. Gloria Swanson is the fair personality in the studio spotlight with Lanny Ross during his hour speaker party. Gloria is promising to contribute "The Trespasser" for a dramatic interpretation.

Boys from the WMEX broadcasting studios here in Boston are feeling good about their bowling prowess lately. They claim to have the WNAC workers beat some last Monday evening, but the latter group insist the match was a tie. So the payoff will come with the payoff that match merely depending now upon naming a mutually satisfactory date.

EXCITING ESCAPE

Valentine Delaney of New York City who was backed against a wall and actually shot by a firing squad and is alive to tell his story, will be one of the three exciting true-life adventures to be dramatized on Floyd Gibbons' "Your True Adventures" broadcast on (WEEI) this evening from 10:00 to 10:30 p. m. For personally relating his amazing story, an episode of the World War, Delaney will receive the weekly award of $25.

True-life re-enactments of two other persons who experienced unusual adventures will also be presented during the half-hour period.

A HUNDRED TIMES your money back . . . if you have a vacant room

With all this talk of "Double your money back," here's how to make that vacant room bring back 25, 50 or even a hundred times your money. Figure it out for yourself. The small cost of an American-Advertiser Room-for-Rent Ad represents but a fraction of a room's rental over a period of weeks, months, years. A room, for example, bringing in as little as $4.00 or $5.00 per week in the course of a year will bring back 100 times a $3.92 expenditure for a Want Ad to fill that room. In fact, your investment for Want Ads is more than returned in the first few weeks your room is occupied. Concentrate your listings in the American-Advertiser and GET RESULTS.

"Thanks very much for renting my vacant room. I will always use American-Advertiser Want Ads in the future."

"I rented my room the very first afternoon my ad appeared in your paper."

"The first day my ad appeared in the American-Advertiser I secured a tenant. I recommend your columns wholeheartedly."

"I always get results from the American-Advertiser. Recently I rented a room the first day my ad appeared."

An Amazing Viewpoint

REPRESENTATIVE EMANUEL CELLER, Chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, gave forth one of the most extraordinary statements ever to emanate from an American legislator.

"THE SUPREME COURT," he says, "MUST BE MADE TO FOLLOW THE ELECTION RETURNS."

The Constitution of the United States seeks by every means in its power to place all federal judges BEYOND THE INFLUENCE OF ELECTION RETURNS by providing that they shall be appointed by the President and shall hold their office during good behavior.

The very essence of judicial authority is that it shall be beyond popular opinion, popular clamor and the popular will, for it has to decide all cases strictly on a legal basis. This legal basis presupposes that justice is superior to emotion, popular or otherwise. The Supreme Court is a jury. And what jury worthy the name would bring in a verdict in accordance with the opinion of the spectators in the courtroom?

IN this the one hundred and fiftieth year of the Constitution it might not be wasted time if Representative Celler and those who misunderstand the functions of the Supreme Court were to study the nature of the true functions of that court.

The Supreme Court is there to see that neither in election returns nor in the sphere of legislation shall anything be ordered that is UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

The Supreme Court is there to protect the country against haywire emotionalism and to act as a stabilizer and crystallizer of the very genius of American democracy.

Representative Celler and those who believe that the Supreme Court is only a rubber stamp for popular whims and congressional and executive whams should recall what Associate Justice Story said more than a century ago:

"IT IS OUR DUTY TO EXPOUND THE LAWS AS WE FIND THEM IN THE RECORDS OF STATE, AND WE CANNOT WHEN CALLED UPON BY THE CITIZENS OF THE COUNTRY REFUSE OUR OPINION HOWEVER IT DIFFERS FROM THAT OF VERY HIGH AUTHORITIES."

This is a pronouncement of HONESTY as opposed to the mere expediency doctrine of those who would seek to warp the minds of the Justices of the Supreme Court to conform to their own private opinions.

THE following is the saner doctrine—from the lips of Judge Charles H. Hatfield, of the U. S. Court of Customs and Patent Appeals, addressing the Ohio Society of New York only the other day:

"THE SUPREME COURT MUST CONTINUE TO HAVE THE POWER IT NOW POSSESSES—THE POWER TO DETERMINE THE CONSTITUTIONALITY OF LEGISLATIVE AND EXECUTIVE ACTS. OR THIS GOVERNMENT WILL PERISH FROM THE FACE OF THE EARTH."

Merely Shifting His Belt Won't Reduce His Weight

Old Government Waste in his feverish haste
Is donning a new disguise.
With a tightened belt he is trying to melt
A girth of prodigious size,
But his adipose still grows and grows,
No matter how hard he tries.

His waist grows thin when he squeezes it in,
But his waste still bulges out.
Like a gas balloon or a harvest moon,
It is still exceeding stout,
While taxpayers scan the Economy Plan
With a feeling of fear and doubt.

The Papal Election

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

Edwin C. Hill

A puff of white smoke rising from the chimney of the Sistine Chapel of St. Peter's in Rome is the first intimation to the world that a new Pope has been elected.

The signal is not the smoke itself. Rather, it is the fact that the smoke is white. Should the smoke be black it means that a choice has not been reached, that no Cardinal received a majority on that particular ballot.

A Pope is elected by the College of Cardinals, and, under the regulations of the Roman Catholic Church, the Cardinals are directed to convene within 15 days after the vacancy has occurred.

A Cardinal is not required to obey the summons to Rome and if, at the end of 15 days, a majority of the college has not arrived, three days of grace may be permitted. After the 18th day, however, there can be no further delay and those present must proceed with the election.

The choice of the Pope is an historical and solemn proceeding. The conclave opens with the Mass of the Holy Spirit. At nightfall, a clock in the gallery of the Court of St. Damasus signals the closing of the chapel to all but the Cardinals.

In the flare of the torches, the prince-marshal, attended by the Swiss Guard, sees to the closing of the galleries and the closing of all doors and exits.

THE VOTE CEREMONY

Alone in the chapel, the conclave proceeds to the task. A large urn is placed before the altar. The oldest Cardinal approaches the urn, kneels for a short prayer, lifts the ballot above a silver chalice which stands before the tabernacle and pronounces the following oath:

"I take as witness Christ our Lord Who one day will be my judge that I have chosen him whom I believe it is my duty to-wards God to choose."

Rising, he places the ballot on the thin silver dish which covers the chalice, slides it into an aperture, bows before the altar and returns to his throne. Each of the other cardinals votes in the same manner. The tellers count the ballots, reading them one by one while the Cardinals make note of how the election is going. If there is not a majority choice, the ballots are burned in a small stove. They are burned with wet straw. This straw gives off a black smoke which signifies to the multitudes in St. Peter's square that no choice has been made.

The conclave has been separated from the world. Its members could receive absolutely only with the election. Their food is passed in to them through a narrow window. After three days, they are limited to a meal of one dish for dinner. If five days pass without an election they receive only bread and water and a small quantity of wine.

The prelate, when chosen to be Pope, announces his acceptance and gives the name by which he will be called. The ranking Cardinal then places upon his finger the Fisherman's Ring, Ring, and the procession starts to the balcony from which the new Pope will make his first appearance as such to the world.

AN OLD PROPHECY

Eight hundred years ago, St. Malachy, Archbishop of Armagh, in Ireland, is supposed to have delivered a remarkable prophecy on the Papacy. It consists of a list of Latin phrases designating the home or the characteristics of each Pope to the last one, who is described in the prophecy as Peter the Roman.

Even Catholic scholars are divided as to the genuineness of the prophecy. It is not a matter of doctrine, and it would seem that a majority of countrymen regard it as interesting but not authentic.

Supposed to have been delivered in the early part of the 12th century, it was not revealed until 1590 A. D., when it was supposed to have been discovered among some old documents in Rome.

One claim that it is a forgery is based on the fact that it was used at the time to foster the claims of a certain Cardinal to the Papacy, the prophecy being made to apply to his place of birth. He was not elected.

"THE ANGELIC SHEPHERD"

In the St. Malachy prophecy, Pope Pius XI is set forth as the one of "intrepid faith". Pope Benedict, who reigned during the World War, was to see "Christianity depopulated". In each case, the prophecy certainly was true to the letter, whether it was made by St. Malachy in 1100 A. D., or forged by someone else in 1590 A. D.

The next Pope, according to the prophecy, is to be "The Angelic Shepherd," by whom it is expected a great reunion of Christendom will be brought about.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

O. O. McIntyre

New York, Jan. 21—There's a rather raucous horse he, ha, in New York social circles for the London insinuations that some of Manhattan's gay set have caused an erosion in British aristocratic circles. All the town knows how the monocled fops and buck-toothed feminine hyenas have been digging in over here.

As the acerbic society scribbler, Nancy Randolph, points out, A. O. McIntyre pack of Burke's Peerage folk have been making a racket in the metropolis of late for several years. It is notorious they have become house guests not only on Long Island, but at the great Palm Beach estates.

And that they accept everything and give nothing—except the tipping the servants when they depart. They are, of course, no more representative of the frisky Britisher than our cocktail swinging hussies who go on the loose when they land in perfidious Albion.

Also, it is quite patent that social climbers who could never make the grade in New York's 400 take the social hurdles in dizzy heigh ho in London just now, indeed one of America's heiresses, with titles to her credit, is on the Big Social Time over there.

A quiet exit from the silent movie world in which she was so long a bright particular star was made by the popular Beverly Bayne. She has never attempted to bask in the glow of the celebrity once here. Instead, she is devoted to her son, works at charity and is of a religious turn. She keeps in touch by mail and personal visits with scores with whom she was associated in triumphal days—scores not so fortunate.

The Master of Ceremony introduction nuisance has run its course. The better class cafes that once suffered the M. C. have thumbs downed. The truth is that real celebrities dit not like the invasion of their private orbit with its relax, and much of those asked to take a bow were the phonies. So great was the annoyance that one floor show has a prominent display line in its newspaper ads and over the portals "No master of ceremony."

It was the late Arthur Brisbane, I think, who years ago punctured the conceit of newspaper writers who thought their output enduring. He wrote: "Today's newspaper stuff starts tomorrow's fires."

I called on a friend recently. Once affluent, he has had bad breaks. An accident confined him to a cramped walk-up in a shabby tenement district. Yet among the contented proletariat he found a kind neighborliness he never knew existed. Each evening someone stops in for a friendly cocktail. His bedroom is filled with gaudily cheap paper flowers and every day there is a caller to know if he cannot act as nurse for the night. He has been profoundly touched and found a strange happiness.

J. P. Morgan, like his father, who imported one and two dollar cigars from Havana, is fond of the pipe. He has a notable collection and there is always one in every one of his suits. Pipes is one of the few fags that take him on personal shopping expeditions. He has a special among his flowers puffing away.

Thisquimbobs: Hitler's favorite breakfast dish is stewed prunes, and Mussolini's Fascist Markey's spectacular job of establishing Rube Goldberg's new earshrinking vocabulary. Cheerful Christian Soldiers"... Charles Francis Coe is one of Gene Tunney's closest friends. Brooklyn already has a cafe named for Burleigh Grimes, the new manager of the Dodgers ... Gary Cooper is fondest of his friends those $15-a-throw giraffe skin gloves.

I never pass the inspiring and dignified statue of Abraham Lincoln without recalling a young coon hunter Squire Mauck used to tell about from back in our Ohio hills who went to the State Fair in Columbus and visited the new capitol building. After a cursory inspection of its enormity, he remarked to his similarly bewildered father:

"Dadburn it, Pap, wouldn't she hold a dang lot of corn?"

London, England

Mr. Jake Goofus
Commist Party
U. S. A.

DEAR JAKE:

I bet you will laugh when you open this up, Jake, because I am goin to tell you a good joak on the Fassist Party over here in England. The English Govt just made a law where you can't ware Political Costumes no more. So Mr. Mosley's Fassists has to quit wareing Black Shirts, and their laundry bill will go up.

As for Comunists such as you, they can go on wareing the Comunist costume, which is a pair of ware-out pants & any colrs shirt you can lay your hand on. The only trouble with them ragged costumes, including a Comunist, is Fassist, I man which didn't like Gambling, and 1 Actor which was a fillin about American Movie Stars.

Everybody was lissening to the Movie Man, and nobody was lissening to Polatics.

England is funny that way, Jake. They figger that Izms isn't no cure for what ails you. They have seen Europe takeing Comunism to cure a case of Fassism, & takeing Fassism to cure Comunism. Neither done has worked out very good on now old Europe.

So there is only one medisine which England wants. They want a dose of Tea & Scones about 5 p. m. every day.

Yure's truely,
WINSTON NORMAN.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Elsie Robinson

If you were a modern young person, would you wish your mother to hold a job or have a career?

There's a new angle to American life's most controversial theme — the working wife.

We've seen this lady depicted as an economic menace, an industrial pest, a social blight. Heard her blamed for the depression ... for the degeneration of the home... for the demoralization of idle men.

Now comes a new charge—hardest of all to face. Young America started it, in those thousands of letters with which it floods this space every Monday, and pulls no punches in making its claim that—

CHILDREN SUFFER?

But how? By taking the job which son or daughter, as well as dad, should hold!

We'll let the youngsters tell it in their own words. Here's Jeanette De Voe, of Chicago, speaking for a sizzling sisterhood.

"Modern youth needs work," she cries. "The lack of a job is the cause of most of our crime wave." Single girls need jobs as much as boys. If we had work to do, we would behave ourselves and build fine futures. Also, boys could afford to marry. But how can we get jobs if our own mothers grab them before we have a chance?

"These working mothers claim they need to do it for 'self expression'—or to show their independence. But the truth is they are restless, selfish and greedy for personal money—thinking only of themselves.

"Married women, whose husbands have incomes, should stay at home and take care of their children. Is there any more serious or sacred duty than that of molding young minds while they are still impressionable—giving them fine ideals and courageous spirits? Is not that enough for any intelligent woman?

"Why do women have children if they expect to rush back at once to their old jobs or careers, thus depriving the baby of care and taking the employment which some young person needs so badly?

"Mothers, go back to your homes and give your children a chance!

"JEANETTE DE VOE."

Which would seem to settle the working mothers' status for keeps.

A DIFFERENT VIEW

But not according to Henry W., of Detroit.

"Thank God," says he, "that I have a modern working mother, not one of those old-fashioned 'home bodies' who haven't had a new idea since Adam was a pup.

"Perhaps it was enough, in dad's day, for a mother to be a good housekeeper and loving parent. But a 20th century mother should know her way around, if she wants to be a real help to her children. She should know what young people are up against when they go out into the world, and she can't possibly know this unless she holds a job herself.

"A job keeps a woman young, lively, well-groomed and up to date, so her children can be proud of her, as well as turn to her for advice. We modern young people do not need fussy food and carefully darned socks half as much as we need a real experienced pal — mother who knows the answers and can understand our temptations.

"HENRY W."

So there you have Young America's opinion of what a 1937 Mother should, or shouldn't be. And now it's YOUR turn.

WHAT DO YOU SAY?

Looking back over the years, into that shabby, happy room where you all gathered nightly, with the light from the old "coal oil" lamp falling brightly on your mother's gentle face and busy hands—what are YOUR reactions?

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

Senator Tydings of Maryland has renewed his campaign to have Congress agree that it will not appropriate any more money than there is in the treasury without providing how, at some time in the future, it is going to pay the bill. He insists the plan "is just good common sense." Taxpayers will agree with that. But all kinds of excuses are being advanced in the Senate why the Tydings' plan should not be adopted.

"It will be a good day."

Senator Tydings says, "when the Congress cannot appropriate more money than is available from the income of the government without providing the means to make up the excess appropriations either through a bond issue, to be liquidated gradually, or by new taxation levied simultaneously with the excess appropriation. My experience has been that everybody is more willing to appropriate than to tax."

There is no answer to that reasoning. Some states have found it a good business to limit appropriations to available revenues. It is just as important for the federal government to keep its spending within its income.

An extortion letter to Governor Marland of Oklahoma reads:

"You are a rich man and I want you to give us a donation of $8000. If you know what is good for you, you will not say anything about this to police or to anyone else. If you do it will be too bad for you and your wife."

The writer of the letter signed himself "Bilk." Anybody who thinks it is easy to take $8000 away from a man just because that man happens to be rich is "bilking" himself.

The New York stock market has risen to the highest average level since 1931. This is not due entirely to bull fever and industrial recovery. Oppressive taxation has played a part. Many investors are holding a instead of selling. If they took their profits, those would have to be shared with the tax collectors.

Adequate Air Defense

ASSURANCE that a "balanced program" for air defense will be submitted to Congress has been given by General Westover, chief of the Army Air Corps.

America's hope of lasting peace is inseparably linked with fulfillment of a program that will make the nation forever secure against any attack.

America Bans Prejudice

THE encouraging report that anti-Semitism in America has steadily declined was made at the thirtieth annual meeting of the American Jewish Committee in New York City.

Dr. Cyrus Adler, president of the committee, crediting American faith in the principles of liberty for this fact, said:

"In our own country, anti-Semitism is not merely an attack upon American Jews, but also an attack upon all American institutions."

The American people, jealous of their freedom, know that prejudice unloosed upon one group of Americans would soon spread to other groups. Security is assured to all by the guaranty that persecution shall be the lot of none.

Dope Pedlars In China

CAPTURED with sixty ounces of narcotics in his possession, a Chinese dope pedlar was executed at Peiping—the first man to suffer the death penalty in the North China campaign against the narcotic vices.

As first announced, the campaign contemplated the extinction of addicts.

Executing a trafficker in the habit-forming drugs, instead of killing his victims, is a good deal less drastic and has, in fact, a good deal to commend it.

There is no offense against humanity more heinous and repulsive than the dope pedlar's vile trade.

For a criminal's profit, he initiates his prey into the narcotic habit, which destroys both body and soul, and causes untold misery.

The addict, himself, in a vast number of cases, is made into a dangerous criminal.

Ceremoniously putting such a murderous creature to death in the Chinese manner may be the best means of ridding the world of him.

And certainly, if the death penalty is to be inflicted, the method employed at Peiping—by shooting—seems hardly as cruel as the electric chair.

Perhaps the Chinese are—as they claim—more civilized than we are.

An Amazing Viewpoint

REPRESENTATIVE EMANUEL CELLER, Chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, gave forth one of the most extraordinary statements ever to emanate from an American legislator.

"THE SUPREME COURT," he says, "MUST BE MADE TO FOLLOW THE ELECTION RETURNS."

The Constitution of the United States seeks by every means in its power to place all federal judges BEYOND THE INFLUENCE OF ELECTION RETURNS by providing that they shall be appointed by the President and shall hold their office during good behavior.

The very essence of judicial authority is that it shall be beyond popular opinion, popular clamor and the popular will, for it has to decide all cases strictly on a legal basis. This legal basis presupposes that justice is superior to emotion, popular or otherwise. The Supreme Court is a jury. And what jury worthy the name would bring in a verdict in accordance with the opinion of the spectators in the courtroom?

IN this the one hundred and fiftieth year of the Constitution it might not be wasted time if Representative Celler and those who misunderstand the functions of the Supreme Court were to study the nature of the true functions of that court.

The Supreme Court is there to see that neither in election returns nor in the sphere of legislation shall anything be ordered that is UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

The Supreme Court is there to protect the country against haywire emotionalism and to act as a stabilizer and crystallizer of the very genius of American democracy.

Representative Celler and those who believe that the Supreme Court is only a rubber stamp for popular whims and congressional and executive whams should recall what Associate Justice Story said more than a century ago:

"IT IS OUR DUTY TO EXPOUND THE LAWS AS WE FIND THEM IN THE RECORDS OF STATE, AND WE CANNOT WHEN CALLED UPON BY THE CITIZENS OF THE COUNTRY REFUSE OUR OPINION HOWEVER IT DIFFERS FROM THAT OF VERY HIGH AUTHORITIES."

This is a pronouncement of HONESTY as opposed to the mere expediency doctrine of those who would seek to warp the minds of the Justices of the Supreme Court to conform to their own private opinions.

THE following is the saner doctrine—from the lips of Judge Charles H. Hatfield, of the U. S. Court of Customs and Patent Appeals, addressing the Ohio Society of New York only the other day:

"THE SUPREME COURT MUST CONTINUE TO HAVE THE POWER IT NOW POSSESSES—THE POWER TO DETERMINE THE CONSTITUTIONALITY OF LEGISLATIVE AND EXECUTIVE ACTS, OR THIS GOVERNMENT WILL PERISH FROM THE FACE OF THE EARTH."

Merely Shifting His Belt Won't Reduce His Weight

Old Government Waste in his feverish haste
Is donning a new disguise.
With a tightened belt he is trying to melt
A girth of prodigious size,
But his adipose still grows and grows,
No matter how hard he tries.

His waist grows thin when he squeezes it in,
But his waste still bulges out.
Like a gas balloon or a harvest moon,
It is still exceeding stout,
While taxpayers scan the Economy Plan
With a feeling of fear and doubt.

The Papal Election

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

A puff of white smoke rising from the chimney of the Sistine Chapel of St. Peter's in Rome is the first intimation to the world that a new Pope has been elected.

Edwin C. Hill

The signal is not the smoke itself. Rather, it is the fact that the smoke is white. Should the smoke be black it means that a choice has not been reached, that no Cardinal received a majority on that particular ballot.

A Pope is elected by the College of Cardinals, and, under the regulations of the Roman Catholic Church, the Cardinals are directed to convene within 15 days after the vacancy has occurred.

A Cardinal is not required to obey the summons to Rome and if, at the end of 15 days, a majority of the college has not arrived, three days of grace may be permitted. After the 18th day, however, there can be no further delay and those present must proceed with the election.

The choice of the Pope is an historical and solemn proceeding. The conclave opens with the Mass of the Holy Spirit. At nightfall, a clock in the gallery of the Court of St. Damascus signals the closing of the chapel to all but the Cardinals.

In the flare of the torches, the prince-marshal, attended by the Swiss Guard, sees to the clearing of the galleries and the closing of all doors and exits.

THE VOTE CEREMONY

Alone in the chapel, the conclave proceeds to its task. A large urn is placed before the altar. The oldest Cardinal approaches the urn, kneels for a short prayer, lifts the ballot above a silver chalice which stands before the tabernacle and pronounces the following oath:

"I take as witness Christ our Lord Who one day will be my judge that I have chosen him whom I believe it is my duty towards God to choose."

Rising, he places the ballot on the thin silver disk which covers the chalice, slides it into an urn, bows before the altar and returns to his throne. Each of the other cardinals votes in the same manner. The tellers count the ballots, reading them one by one while the Cardinals make note of how the election is going. If there is not a majority choice, the ballots are burned in a small stove. They are burned with wet straw. This straw gives off a black smoke which signifies to the multitudes in St. Peter's square that no choice has been made.

The conclave has been separated from the world. Its members must concern themselves only with the election. Their food is passed in to them through a narrow window. After three days of this they are limited to a meal of one dish for dinner. If five days pass without an election they receive only bread and water and a small quantity of wine.

The priest who, chosen to be Pope, announces his acceptance and gives the name by which he will be called. The ranking Cardinal then places upon his finger the Fisherman's Ring. Ring and the procession starts to the balcony from which the new Pope will make his first appearance as such to the world.

AN OLD PROPHECY

Eight hundred years ago, St. Malachy, Archbishop of Armagh, in Ireland, is supposed to have delivered a remarkable prophecy on the Papacy. It consists of a list of Latin phrases designating the house or the characteristics of each Pope in the line one, who is described in the prophecy as Peter the Roman.

Even Catholic scholars are divided as to the genuineness of the prophecy. It is not a matter of doctrine, and it would seem that a majority of churchmen regard it as interesting but not authentic.

Supposed to have been delivered in the early part of the 12th century, it was not revealed until 1590 A. D., when it was supposed to have been discovered among some old documents in Rome.

One claim that it is a forgery is based on the fact that it was used at the time to foster the claims of a certain Cardinal to the Papacy, the prophecy being made to apply to his place of birth. He was not elected.

"THE ANGELIC SHEPHERD"

In the St. Malachy prophecy, Pope Pius XI is set forth as the one of "intrepid faith". Pope Benedict, who reigned during the World War, was to see "Christianity depopulated." In this case, the prophecy certainly was true to the letter, whether it was made by St. Malachy in 1100 A. D. or forged by someone else in 1590 A. D.

The next Pope, according to the prophecy, is to be "The Angelic Shepherd," by whom it is expected a great reunion of Christendom will be brought about.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Jan. 21—There's a rather raucous horse ha, ha in New York social circles for the London insinuations that some of Manhattan's gay set have caused an erosion in British aristocratic circles. All the town knows how the moneyed Pops and buck-toothed feminine phoneys have been digging in over here.

As the acerbic society scribber, Nancy Randolph, points out, a pack of Burke's Peerage folk have been making a racket in the metropolis of titles for several years. In retortion they have become house guest pests not only on Long Island, but at the great Palm Beach estates.

And that they accept everything and give nothing—not even tipping the servants when they depart. They are, of course, no more representative of the true Britisher than our cousins are the jing-hussies who go on the loose when they land in perfidious Albion.

Also, it is quite patent that social climbers who could never make the grade in New York 400 take the social hurdles in high heels in London. Just now, indeed, one of America's heiresses, with titles to her credit, is on the Big Social Time over there.

A quiet exit from the silent screen world in which she was so long a bright particular star was made by the popular Beverly Bayne. She has never attempted to bask in the glow of the celebrity once here. Instead, she is devoted to her son, works of charity and is of a religious turn. She keeps in touch by mail and personal visits with scores of friends she was associated in triumphal days—scores not so fortunate.

The Master of Ceremony introduction nuisance has about run its course. The better class patient once suffered the M. C. have thumbs downed. The truth is that real celebrities did not like the invasion of their privacy when out to relax, and most of those skilled in take a few edits the phones. So great was the annoyance that one floor show has a prominent display line in its newspaper ads and over its portals: "No master of ceremony."

It was the late Arthur Brisbane, I think, who years ago pinctured the conceit of newspaper writers who thought their ouput enduring. He wrote: "Today's newspaper stuff starts tomorrow's fires."

I called on a friend recently. Once affluent, he has had bad breaks. An accident confined him to a cramped walk-up in a shabby tenement district. Yet among the somewhat submerged, he found a kind of Dutch treat. He never knew existed. Each evening someone sends in a ready cooked meal. His bedroom is filled with garishly cheap paper flowers and every day there is a caller to know if he cannot act as nurse for the night. He has been profoundly touched and found a strange happiness.

J. P. Morgan, like his father, who imported one and two dollar cigars from Havana, is a lover of the pipe. He has a notable collection and there is always one in easy reach. His quest for pipes is one of the jags that take him on personal shopping expeditions. He likes to stroll among the shops puffing away.

Mr. Jake Goofus
Comunist Party
U. S. A.

DEAR JAKE:

I bet you will laugh when you open this up, Jake, because I am goin to tell you a good joak on the Fassist Party over here in England. The English Govt just made a law where you can't wear Political Costumes no more. So Mr. Mosley's Fassists has to quit warning Black shirts, and their laundry bill will go up.

As fer Comunists such as you, they are goin on warning the Comunist costume, which is a pair of wore-out pants & any color shirt you can lay your hand on. The only trouble with them ragged costumes, they're being wore by Toryes which have went buried from Heavy Taxes. So you can't tell an Englishman's politics by lookin at the seat of his pants.

Well, Jake I will now tell you how the Comunist Party is getin along. He's gettin along fine. His name is Mr. Willie Gallacher, he's the only sampel of Comunist in Parliament.

Between from him, the Radicls business don't make no profits in England. I was down to a place they call Tower Hill, where anybody can stand on a box & make a Free Speech. A folks was yellin at the same time, including 1 Comunist, 1 Fassist, 1 man which didn't like Gambling, and 1 Actor which was tellin about American Movie Stars.

Everybody was lissening to the Movie Man, and nobody was lissening to Politics.

England is funny that way, Jake. They figger that Isms isn't no cure for what ails you. They have seen Europe takeing Comunism to cure a case of Fassism, & takeing Fassism to cure Comunism. Neither dose has worked out very good on poor old Europe.

So there is only one medisine which England wants. They want a dose of Tea & Scones about 5 p. m. every day.

Yure's truely,
WINSTON NORMAN.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Elsie Robinson

If you were a modern young person, would you wish your mother to hold a job or have a career?

There's a new angle to America's most controversial theme—the working wife.

We've seen this lady depicted as an economic menace, an industrial peril, a social blight. Heard her blamed for the depression . . . for the degeneration of the home . . . for the demoralization of idle men.

Now comes a new charge—hardest of all to face. Young America started it, in those thousands of letters with which it floods the space every Monday, and it packs no punches in making its claim that

CHILDREN SUFFER?

But how? By taking the job which son or daughter, as well as dad, should hold!

We'll let the youngsters tell it in their own way. Here's Jeanette De Voe, of Chicago, speaking for a sizzling sisterhood.

"Modern youth needs work," she cries. "The lack of a job is the cause of most of our 'crime waves'. Single girls need jobs as much as boys. If we had work to do, we would behave ourselves and build fine futures. Also, boys could afford to marry. But how can we get jobs if our own mothers grab them before we have a chance?

"These working mothers claim they need to do it for 'self expression'—or to show their independence. But the truth is they are restless, selfish and greedy for personal money—thinking only of themselves.

"Married women, whose husbands have incomes, should stay at home and take care of their children. Is there any more serious or sacred duty than that of molding young minds while they are still impressionable—giving them fine ideals and courageous spirits? Is not that enough for any intelligent woman?

"Why do women have children if they expect to rush back at once to their old jobs or careers, thus depriving the little darlings and taking the employment which some young person needs so badly?

"Mothers, go back to your homes and give your children a chance!"

"JEANETTE DE VOE."

Which would seem to settle the working mothers' status for keeps.

A DIFFERENT VIEW

But not according to Henry W., of Detroit.

"Thank God," says he, "that I have a modern working mother, not one of those old-fashioned 'home bodies' who haven't had a new idea since Adam was a pup.

"Perhaps it was enough, in dad's day, for a mother to be a good housekeeper and loving parent. But a 20th century mother should know her way around, if she wants to be a real help to her children. She should know what young people are up against when they go out into the world, and she can't possibly know this unless she holds a job herself.

"A job keeps a woman young, lively, well-groomed and up to date, so her children can be proud of her, as well as turn to her for advice. We modern young people do not need fussy food and carefully darned socks half as much as we need a real experienced pal—mother who knows the answers and can understand our temptations.

"HENRY W."

So there you have Young America's opinion of what a 1937 Mother should, or shouldn't be. And now it's YOUR turn.

WHAT DO YOU SAY?

Looking back over the years, into that shabby, happy room where you all gathered nightly, with the light from the old "coal oil" lamp falling brightly on your mother's gentle face and busy hands—what are YOUR reactions?

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

Senator Tydings of Maryland has renewed his campaign to have Congress agree that it will not appropriate any more money than there is in the treasury without providing how, at some time in the future, it is going to pay the bill. He insists the plan "is just good common sense." Taxpayers will agree with that. But all kinds of excuses are being advanced in the Senate why the Tydings' plan should not be adopted.

"It will be a good day," Senator Tydings says, "when the Congress cannot appropriate more money than is available from the income of the government without providing the means to make up the excess appropriations, either through a bond issue, to be liquidated gradually, or by new taxation levied simultaneously with the excess appropriation. My experience has been that everybody is more willing to appropriate than to tax."

There is no answer to that reasoning. Some days have found it is good business to limit appropriations to available revenues. It is just as important for the federal government to keep its spending within its income.

An extortion letter to Governor Marland of Oklahoma reads:

"You are a rich man and I want you to give us a donation of $5000. If you know what is good for you, you will not say anything about this to police or to anyone else. If you do it will be too bad for you and your wife."

The writer of the letter signed himself "Milk." Anybody who thinks it is easy to take $5000 away from a man just because that man happens to be rich is "milking" himself.

The New York stock market has risen to the highest average level since 1931. This is not due entirely to business and industrial recovery. Oppressive taxation has played a part. Many investors are holding on instead of selling. If they took their profits those would have to be shared with the tax collectors.
